

Inquiry in Doubt

Opposition Split

House Hears More Highway Charges

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

The NDP and Liberals in the legislature Friday both fired more big guns at Highways Minister Gagliardi but the opposition parties couldn't agree between themselves whether the whole matter should be put to a judicial inquiry. (See also Page 22.)

The house was thrown into an uproar as the first opposition speaker, Alan Macfarlane (L.-Oak Bay), called for a judicial inquiry into "this whole dirty business" and said it was the only way the air can be cleared from "this unhealthy stench of suspicion arising from innuendo." Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East), who spoke next, said he wasn't against holding a judicial inquiry but he felt one wasn't necessary because the public had already been made aware of many of the facts surrounding controversial land developments along major B.C. Interior highways.

Then Mr. Macdonald went on to make additional disclosures regarding the involvement of Mr. Gagliardi's two sons in land developments along the new Yellowhead route, Trans Canada highway, and highway 16 east.

Bonner

● The Gagliardi sons, Bob, 27, and Bill, 24, were connected by Mr. Macdonald with companies holding land at Cache Creek, Blue River and McBride.

● Mr. Macdonald said provincial assessment notices on two of the lots at Blue River were actually sent to Mr. Gagliardi's Kamloops home in the name of Northland Investments Ltd., a company which is also connected with Bill and Bob Gagliardi at a Vancouver address.

● The NDP member also charged that companies involved in ownership of the property in question, as well as property at the Trans-Canada-Merritt highway junction near Kamloops, were in breach of the Companies Act because they did not file the names of their real owners with the companies office in Victoria.

● Mr. Macdonald alleged that a sign posted at Blue River by Northland was "obviously" painted by the Kamloops highways department sign shop foreman, Frank Methot, the same man who "moonlighted" to paint a similar sign advertising property for sale near Kamloops.

● Mr. Macdonald said the whole case raised a question of political morality: "Is it

Old Case

Suit Requires Testimony Of Minister

VANCOUVER (CP)—The ghost of a legislative inquiry into the provincial highways department came back to haunt embattled Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi Friday.

Mr. Gagliardi was served with a subpoena ordering him to appear in Vancouver county court next week as a witness in a trial arising from the same road contract incident that triggered an investigation of his department in 1963.

(It is believed members of the legislature enjoy immunity from subpoenas during the course of a session as well as 20 days before and 20 days following a session.)

The subpoena was issued by Dick Holzworth, a Helena, Mont., contractor, who was president of Union Contractors Ltd. when the case first arose five years ago.

Mr. Holzworth is suing Arthur Burton Lymburner, a former director of L and M Logging Co., for unspecified damages. Mr. Lymburner's company held a contract for work on the Southern Trans Provincial Highway several years ago that was later taken over by Union Contractors in a cash-for-shares transaction.

GAGLIARDI CLEARED

Mr. Holzworth triggered the investigation of Mr. Gagliardi's department with allegations of graft. Mr. Gagliardi was subsequently exonerated.

In a speech to the legislature Thursday night, the member for Kamloops said he had learned that one man had been offered a $25,000 bribe to testify against him in a civil case in Vancouver, apparently the Holzworth action.

He declined to identify the man he says was offered a bribe, but said the matter has been referred to the attorney-general's department.

It was the latest round in a series of developments that started two weeks ago when Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East) shocked the legislature by inferring there had been some land deals involving Mr. Gagliardi's department and his two sons, Bill and Bob, in the Kamloops area.

SWORN STATEMENT

Meanwhile, at Kamloops, The Sentinel Friday published an affidavit sworn by a Blue River businessman, who once held rights to purchase a piece of property along the present route of the Yellowhead, which is now under construction.

James Lamont said in the affidavit he was first approached by Bob and Bill Gagliardi in the fall of 1964. He said they offered to buy his option on the land for $200 and had escalated their offer to $2,000 by February the following year.

Mr. Lamont said he was not at any time aware that the property would be on the Yellowhead route. He said he eventually lost his option and the land later went to Northland Investments Ltd.

JURISDICTION SWITCH DEFIED OFFICERS JOIN FERRY TIEUP

Despite the government's emergency legislation Friday night to end the B.C. Ferries strike, the walkout still stands.

The ferry workers voiced "no thought of getting back on the job," and were joined in their action by 200 mates, engineers, masters and pilots aboard the ferries, who voted to strike at midnight.

The officers are members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

"This new legislation changes nothing as far as I can make out," said Norman Thornber, business agent for the 800-member marine branch of the B.C. Government Employees Association which represents the unlicensed deck and dock workers.

Royal Assent Given

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was called to the legislature shortly before 10 p.m. Friday to give royal assent to a bill bringing the ferry system into the highways department and the government immediately appealed to striking crews to return to work by Sunday morning.

The move, which was condemned by the NDP in the house as "strike breaking" and "iron-fist bureaucracy," is intended to strengthen the hand of the government in bargaining with 800 striking unlicensed ferry workers.

The men went out on strike at 5 a.m. Friday, halting all sailings on two major routes linking Vancouver Island with the mainland as well as several minor routes.

The government action was termed "largely psychological" by government spokesmen. It brought the ferries under direct control of Highways Minister Gagliardi and removed all argument about whether crew members had the right to strike—a right which civil servants in the government do not enjoy.

There was no immediate indication that the government would force the men to return to work.

Mr. Gagliardi issued an appeal for all ferry workers to report for work in time for the first sailings Sunday morning. He promised "fair treatment" for all and told reporters outside the house the crews were assured that "time and time we will listen to you and treat you

Air Armada Lone Ferry Pack 'Em In

Airlines and one lone ferry worked hard on the Island Friday, handling extra traffic caused by the B.C. Ferries strike. Ferry traffic from Swartz Bay and Nanaimo to the B.C. mainland was almost halted, except for the CPR ferry Princess Vancouver.

Planes in Nanaimo were crowded with customers to closing time Friday as people cashed cheques to handle the expense of overnight lodgings forced on them by the ferries shutdown.

"There's standing room only," said a near-exhausted CPR ferry official Friday after having turned away more than a hundred cars.

The car deck had been booked solidly for the 10 p.m. sailing by 3 o'clock that afternoon.

By late Friday night, the 10 p.m. Saturday sailing was completely booked.

The ferry makes three sailings from Nanaimo each day to downtown Vancouver.

Planes Keep Busy

A chartered Nanaimo airline which normally makes five flights a day to Vancouver stepped up its schedule to 17 flights to handle extra traffic.

Air Canada scheduled 11 extra Viscount flights each way between Victoria and Vancouver, during the day on Friday, and cleaned up the stand-by passengers Friday evening by adding two more extra flights, carrying more than 1,000 passengers each way during the day.

Today and Sunday, Air Canada will play it by ear, but have arranged to have a similar pattern available, with 11 extra flights during the day and two in the evening, making a total of 19 each way with Viscount aircraft.

If the traffic warrants it, an Air Canada official said, there may be a DC-8 flight scheduled for the afternoon, when traffic is heaviest.

Extra Ground Staff

On Friday afternoon, some of the stand-by passengers chartered B.C. Airlines, which made two flights in its nine-passenger aircraft.

Air Canada added extra reservations staff to keep up with the heavy flow of inquiries, and will keep the staff beefed up as long as the emergency exists.

The Mayne Island Queen, plying from Swartz Bay to the major Gulf Island ports, and the Salt Spring Island ferry, from Swartz Bay to Fulford Harbor, were running Friday, but a ferry official was not able to say whether they would continue to ply on schedule.

Ferry workers' association officials were not available for comment on how the two short-run ferries were staffed for their runs.

Trudeau: late starter out front

'It Started As Huge Joke' But Race Seriously Shaken

By RON COLLISTER

OTTAWA (Special)—Pierre Elliott Trudeau today emerges as a front-runner for the Liberal leadership or the man who could deliver the job to the candidate of his choice. The 46-year-old justice minister threw his hat into the ring, the eleventh candidate to succeed Prime Minister Pearson.

Trade Minister Robert Winters is expected to be the twelfth. A source close to Winters said Friday that the announcement is now only a matter of strategy.

The Trudeau entry has shaken up the race. He is expected to cut deeply into the committed support of Paul Martin, Mitchell Sharp, John Turner and others.

The Trudeau reluctance to run disappeared rapidly Friday. He is now a candidate trying as hard as anyone in the field.

He announced his decision at a news conference and gave the newsmen the credit or the blame for his running. "I didn't start off, a long time ago, deciding that I wanted to be leader of the Liberal party," Trudeau said. "If I had to assess what happened in the past two months, I have a suspicion that you people had a lot to do with it," he told the newsmen. "I think that in the subcon-

U.S. Blacklisted Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Trudeau acknowledged Friday he was once on a U.S. government blacklist prohibiting his entry to the country.

He gave details under questioning at a news conference at which he entered the Liberal leadership race.

Trudeau said he was removed from the blacklist after he asked the U.S. government to review his case. He gave this account.

Around 1956 or 1957 he was a delegate to a Commonwealth conference in Pakistan as a member of the Institute of International Affairs. At that time, he had heard he was on the blacklist and later went to the U.S. consulate in Montreal and had it confirmed.

He inquired how to "whiten" himself in the eyes of the U.S. government. He was told it was necessary to appeal the decision and did so. There was an examination of his case and his past was looked into. And the decision was reversed. It took a few weeks.

Trudeau said he suspected the blacklist arose from two things. One was his attendance at the 1952 economic conference in Moscow when Joseph Stalin was at the height of his power as the Soviet leader.

The minister said he was attacked at the time for being communist. The second factor was that he had subscribed to left-wing periodicals.

Glass, Steel Stay But Not So Clay

GAME GOES ON: While cabinet ministers shed their crocodile tears, outside the sun is shining and the games of marbles go on.

It was photographer William E. John who called to ask if any research had been done into the vocabulary of marbles and it seems there is nothing in the dictionary on the subject.

The language has changed and is still changing. For example there are no longer any clay marbles in this affluent society, everything is glass or steel.

In the 1920s clay marbles were called, believe it or not, commies. By the early 30s the name changed to dough babies -- now there is not word for them.

A ball bearing is called a steelie. Players were never allowed to use a steelie in a dough baby game because the heavy metal just smashed the clay.

The use of the word alloy for any kind of marble is common to all English-speaking countries while those of milk glass with red trim are blood alloys.

Size has its own special argot. Small ones are peewees, bigger ones are alleys, medium sized marbles are quart-pints and the large marble is distinguished by the names cob or tomboles.

It was also suggested that mumps and ruggies were terms for size among clay marblers but this can not be documented.

The term fudging, or more correctly bull fudging, is in common use. This would seem to mean a shot delivered Improperly in order to gain advantage. It is now in general use to denote cheating of any kind. In the 1870s the term meant a forged or worthless stamp.

A call for chinks and a shot allows the caller to hit the side of one foot with the other allowing the impact to move the marble. Chinks may be called for from one to four and the caller is allowed one shot at the end into the pot or hole.

A shout of Fudges implies that the shooter has hit the opponent's marble and wants payment of one marble. Shouts are allowed for a variety of reasons but a prior call by one player of Nothing on Me means that he will accept no conditions of play other than the normal rules.

So while the boys down at the legislature call each other it's back to the world of Hardies, Upsies, Last Keeps and Nothing in the Pot.

If you know any other terms or variants please pass them on.

PLUSH SPOT: The dining room at the Empress Hotel is a mess right now, but manager Les Parkinson says it will be the poshest spot in the Pacific Northwest by May 1.

He says the room is being done over to look like the Imperial Room in Toronto's Royal York. Tapestries to hang on the walls are now being woven and a special carpet is on order for the floor.

The paneling has been retained to placate the old-timers, but there will be a sunken dance floor to accommodate the swingers.

HUSTING DUSTING: The next Liberal leadership hopeful to hit town will be Health Minister Allan Rock. He will speak to about 40 local Grits at the Red Lion Inn this afternoon.

Arrangements for the nitty gritty band are being made by Tom Purvis in Vancouver.

MODEL GIFT: While the Maritime Museum remains closed for lack of funds it is still getting donations. The latest from Spain includes two oil paintings, two prints and a model ship.

Curator Bill Symons says the quality of the workmanship in the model of the 24-gun corvette has his own model-maker drooling over the quality of craftsmanship.

The public will get a look at the Spanish gifts when the museum opens before Easter.

Deaf Ears Primary Reason For So Many Poison Deaths

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
(Fifth of six parts)

The primary reason for poisonings is that too many people shut their ears to warnings. At the same time they do not realize how many common household products are poisonous.

Even when they do, many are careless.

Others think that because a liquid, cream or chemical is unpleasant-tasting to an adult, small children will avoid it, too. That isn't so.

SAFETY RULE

If they will swallow lye -- and they do -- the obviously will swallow anything that catches their notice: gasoline, ammonia, bleach, ant poison, lighter fluid, worm medicine, deodorants, shampoo, perfume, alcohol, paint, fertilizers, powders and tablets, plant food, glues and cements.

All of the above already have poisoned many children, nearly all have killed at least some.

Your Good Health

So another safety rule is to understand child psychology. A baby or toddler's unsophisticated sense of taste, and a child's willingness to put anything and everything into his mouth.

Just keeping things in a bottle isn't enough. The bottle has to be way out of reach. Small children can climb -- and do. Ignorance and carelessness and underestimating the risk are the most common causes of poisoning.

Too many infants and children are reaching poison centres, not because they had been inquisitive, but because their own mothers poisoned them with too much aspirin -- usually "trying to get the fever down."

How many times do we have to say it? Aspirin is the most dangerous single poison in the modern home.

There are figures on how much aspirin is dangerous -- such as "one grain per pound of body weight," meaning that much will make a child ill but not kill him. But I decline to say how many tablets is safe. A poison expert convinced me not to, with this argument:

SAFE DOSE

"There is only one safe rule: Let your doctor tell you how much to use. People don't remember. They confuse grains with tablets. And they don't know that even a small part of a so-called safe dose can be dangerously dangerous if a child is in acidosis."

Check with your doctor, or you may poison your own child. Other mothers are doing it every day.

Thant Seeing LBJ, War Chief Stays

WASHINGTON (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations will call on President Johnson Wednesday, it was announced Friday amid little expectation here of a breakthrough toward peace talks on Vietnam.

Shortly after the announcement, Johnson told a news conference: "I don't think Hanoi is any more ready to negotiate today, any more than it was one year ago or two years ago or three years ago."

Thant returned to New York Thursday from a trip during which he sounded out several world leaders on the prospects of peace in Vietnam. He visited India, the Soviet Union, Britain and France and had talks with North Vietnamese leaders in New Delhi and Paris.

The general results have been described as negative, and Johnson told his news conference Friday that his pessimistic view of North Vietnam's stance took into account what he had learned of Thant's talks abroad.

Thant told a reporter at the United Nations, however, that he was sure his talks with Johnson next week "will be helpful to everybody."

North Vietnam's top diplomats in Asia and Europe were reported to have told Thant that Hanoi is standing firm in rejecting Johnson's terms. And informants said neither the Indians nor the Soviets offered any new hope for breaking the impasse.

Asked at his news conference whether he was giving any thought to raising U.S. troop levels in Vietnam, Johnson replied that "yes, we give thought to it every day."

Johnson also sought to dispel rumors that Gen. William Westmoreland will soon be relieved of his command of U.S. forces in South Vietnam.

"I have no intention of seeing him leave or asking him to leave," Johnson said. "If I had to select a man to lead me into battle in Vietnam, I would want Gen. Westmoreland. Now, does that make it clear?"

The president also dismissed recurring reports that U.S. military leaders in Vietnam want to use tactical nuclear weapons.

Johnson said that "at no time" have either the secretaries of state or defense or the U.S. joint chiefs of staff recommended the use or deployment of nuclear weapons.

Bitter Fighting

Allies Fail to Flush Stubborn Hue Reds

HUE, South Vietnam (CP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops, supported by a direct supply line from North Vietnam, continued to hold out in the ancient imperial citadel of Hue Friday.

U.S. and South Vietnamese troops made little progress against the entrenched insurgents in bitter street fighting on the 17th day since the communist spring offensive began.

A U.S. army major said communist trucks were supplying the citadel with food, ammunition and reinforcements.

VALLEY ROAD
The trucks—mainly commandeered civilian vehicles but including some North Vietnamese army trucks—used a road down the Ashau Valley in South Vietnam built last year by North Vietnamese army engineers, the major said.

U.S. and South Vietnamese troops were fighting house-to-house Friday through a middle-class residential suburb. Snipers were everywhere among the narrow, tree-lined streets.

They were hoping to take the walls of the ancient citadel, then squeeze the North Vietnamese into the Imperial Palace—a fortress in itself with walls and moats.

STUDENTS HELP
A week ago, the North Vietnamese held half of the two-square-mile citadel. Friday, they held a third of it.

The Associated Press reported insurgent forces in Hue, believed to total 800 men, seemed to have plenty of ammunition. It said the insurgents had been helped by some Hue University students and had stocked strong points in the citadel with food, water and war supplies when they took control of the city Jan. 31.

Brig. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, commander of the South Vietnamese First Division, said it might be another two weeks before the communists are driven from the citadel.

Reports reaching Saigon said U.S. destroyers poured shells into the citadel from their five-inch guns.

Putting Canada First

THE "CANADA FIRST" REPORT by a commission of eight economists recommends that greater government attention should be given to the activities of foreign-owned companies operating in Canada either directly or through Canadian subsidiaries.

It has been described as "politically explosive", although it contains little that is new, and merely reflects accurately the aims and policies of Walter Gordon, president of the Privy Council, and former minister of finance.

Nobody disagrees that Canadian interests in industry and commerce must come first; it is the way of achieving that end which creates the difficulty.

While it has not been officially admitted, little doubt exists in the public mind that it was Mr. Gordon's strong views on foreign ownership and his advocacy of government ownership of industry through the proposed Canada Development Corporation that caused the prime minister to remove Mr. Gordon from the treasury and later to appoint him to the Privy Council post, where he would exert lesser influence upon the economic and financial policies of the nation.

However, in recognition of Mr. Gordon's efforts for the party, and because he undoubtedly has considerable public support for his "nationalist" theories, the government put him in charge of a committee to study foreign ownership of Canadian business, and it was this cabinet committee which last year approved the formation of the Watkins commission, whose report has now been made public.

The fact that Mr. Gordon himself tabled the report in the House, and in doing so clearly dissociated it from government opinion or policy, indicates that the cabinet is either mixed or against the recommendations. As such it becomes a fairly tame presentation, and is not one likely to have any immediate effect on policy.

On the other hand there is direct evidence that although Mr. Gordon is no longer a government policy-maker, many of his aims and ideas about national economic independence are also the aims of the government in a less aggressive way.

Last year Trade Minister Robert Winters called the chief executives of Canadian subsidiaries of foreign owned firms to impress upon them the fact they must be good Canadian corporate citizens, obeying Canadian laws, and acting in the best interests of their adopted country.

The government particularly pointed out to subsidiaries of United States companies that, in international trading, Canadian and not U.S. regulations are to be observed.

More recently the government has indicated its awareness of foreign infiltration by demanding that the U.S. interests in the British Columbia coal deal with Japan should use a Canadian railway rather than a U.S. line to move the coal to the west coast.

On the other hand, although the Canada Development Corporation is still listed as a government proposal, it is not considered as an immediate prospect, and indeed it is the right wing of the party that is its enemy.

The Canada Development Corporation which would be a publicly-owned holding company controlled by the government, has socialist overtones, putting so much commercial power into government hands that it could be a tremendously dangerous instrument.

Besides that it could open up international bitterness, if it pursued its course to the limit and attempted to enforce repatriation on unwilling foreign owners.

The CDC is also probably unnecessary at the present moment when the policy of the U.S. government is to curb the outflow of American capital into foreign ventures and to encourage foreign ownership of U.S. corporations.

Much more dangerous as an immediate Canadian economic problem is the export of Canadian capital into the green fields of U.S. glamor stocks. Government intervention to deter this outflow and to make it more attractive for Canadians to invest in domestic enterprises would appear to be a more pressing Canadian need than the implementation of the CDC.

Late Starter

A 46-YEAR-OLD MONTREALER, scholarly, highly articulate and sophisticated, Mr. Pierre Elliott Trudeau is the latest candidate to offer himself for the Liberal Party leadership, which carries with it at this time the responsibility of the prime ministership.

Although he has been in the cabinet only 10 months, and in the Commons since 1965, the minister of justice is reputed to possess the most impressive "built-in" support potential of any of the 11 aspirants for the highest political office in the land.

His impeccable French and English give him a foot in two camps, so to speak.

His courageous federalism is well-known. For he made his position clear in debate during the recent federal-provincial constitutional conference where Quebec's Premier Daniel Johnson was pressing the case for special status for his province.

It can be argued that in the face of a crisis on the separatist issue, a Liberal leader from Quebec would have more influence in overcoming a trend threatening to the confederation than an English Liberal.

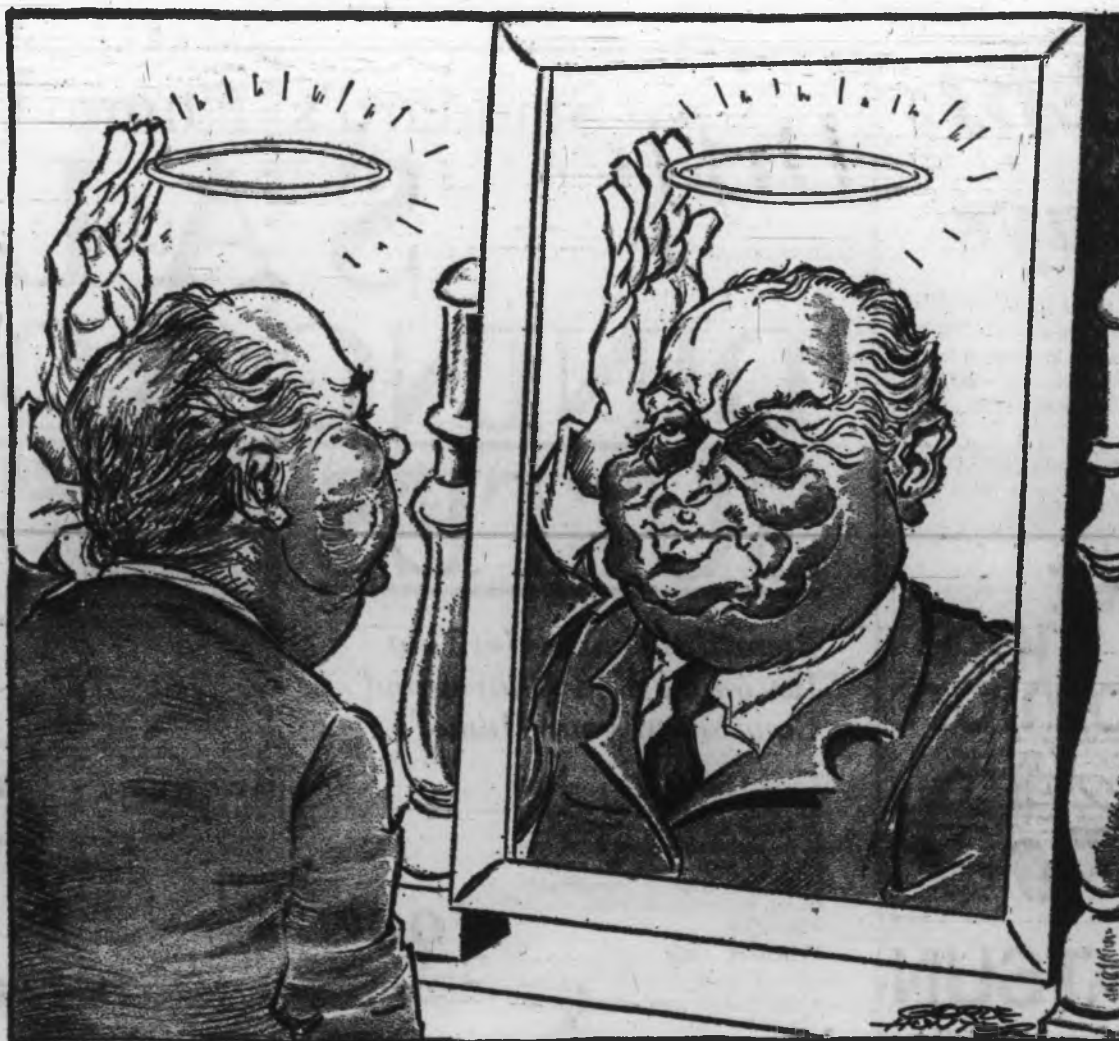

In the assessment of Mr. Trudeau's chances at the Liberal convention it must be assumed he would command a good proportion of the approximately 650 delegates voting from his own province and, in spite of Mr. Ralph Cavan, Liberal member for York-Humber, who intends to discredit him as a socialist, he has a known following in Ontario where there are some 600 delegates-votes.

He is expected to command support from the French element in the Maritimes as well. Anything he might pick up from the 600 eligibles from Manitoba westward to British Columbia would be icing on the cake.

Mr. Eric Kierans, the former Quebec minister of health and past-president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, has suggested Mr. Trudeau won't get the backing he expects in that province. But then Mr. Kierans is himself a candidate, and there are other knowledgeable political figures who give Mr. Trudeau a minimum of 350 Quebec votes on the first ballot.

There is also the belief in some quarters that Prime Minister Lester Pearson favors Mr. Trudeau, one of the "three wise men" he brought into his cabinet from Quebec.

What about the West? Mr. Trudeau is not as well known as some of his opponents, it is true, but he will try to meet the people before this month is out. Liberal sources here say he may be on Vancouver Island February 22.

Protracted War Previous Policy

The New Strategy of the Viet Cong

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT from Hong Kong

A CAREFUL reading of the most recent and most authoritative general Hanoi appraisal of the war in South Vietnam demonstrates that the "general offensive" was a radical revision of communist strategy.

Alongside other evidence, that appraisal indicates that the Viet Cong did not change their overall approach because it was doing poorly — in fact, it was working well. Though they may have been confident of victory, it appears that the offensive was ordered because a range of military and political pressures was wearing the communists down.

No more than football coaches do generals tinker with winning tactics. Yet the dangerous and costly spring offensive was not merely tinkering, but almost a reversal.

Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, minister of defence of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam, architect of the French defeat in Indo-China, and commander-in-chief of the Vietnamese communist armies in both North and South Vietnam, last September mused exhaustively on his war against the Americans. His article, "Big Victory, Big Task," was not only a propaganda document, but a high policy directive to the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Throughout his long article, Giap stressed two chief points: the communists were winning because their own brilliant dedication opposed slack American ineptitude; and the war would be "protracted" because extended attrition was the most effective counter to American technological superiority.

The cautious Chinese communists, the grand masters of Asian guerrilla war, have also stressed the theme of "protracted war" in their public messages to Hanoi and the Viet Cong, starting in September 1965 with Communist Party Vice Chairman Lin Biao's long pamphlet on "People's War" and continuing through all their comments on the present offensive.

Yet Vietnamese comments on the spring offensive, including even President Ho Chi-minh's congratulations to the Viet Cong, all declare that the present battle must be "pressed on to final victory."

Moreover, action around Khe Sanh could develop into a broad North Vietnamese attack.

Although they themselves give that impression, there is no absolute certainty that the communists are committed to the unrelenting pursuit of total victory through their offensive. But it is quite clear that, at the very least, both Viet Cong and regular North Vietnamese troops have been committed in great numbers to a major campaign, whose failure could be a great setback to their plans to conquer South Vietnam.

It is relatively easy to see why the decision once having been taken, the offensive came when it did.

Tet, the lunar new year festival, was the best time to catch the South Vietnamese off guard. Nor will the weather in Vietnam, which now inhibits air action, remain overcast for more than another month.

If the Viet Cong wished to take advantage of the "contradictions and antagonisms" they believe exist in "American ruling circles" before a presidential election, Tet was the time to do so. A later attack would have allowed less time for the bitter lesson they intended to teach to sink home.

Besides, an election-bent president would presumably be more receptive to the cloak-capitulation of peace on the communists' terms.

These conclusions help explain why the communists struck when they did. They do not explain why the communists abandoned a strategy for which they claimed great success in favor of a strategy which is, to say the least, hazardous.

Beyond the obvious conclusion that the communists realized they were not doing as well as they claimed, specific reasons for the shift can only be educated guesses. The evidence is too scanty to support any definite conclusions. Nonetheless, examining the complex of probable factors casts light on the aberrant strategy.

Like Washington, Hanoi has its hawks and doves. The hawks, impatient for victory, were certainly encouraged by their own reports and western journalists' dispatches to believe that their offensive would evoke a massive popular reaction. But the South Vietnamese people notably failed to rise in support of the Viet Cong. Their passive resistance was an act of great courage.

The communists now face not only a major task of retraining and regrouping, but a public becoming skeptical of their ultimate prowess. Although impressed by the length and coordination of the offensive, the South Vietnamese are likely to wonder how the Viet Cong can win in the long run when their massive strike failed to hold their objectives. Popular decisions in guerrilla warfare are made on the individual's judgment of the likely winner.

The communists' decision to stake so much on one roll of the dice may have been influenced by the gradual, undramatic decline of their position in both North and South.

The cumulative effect of the bombing of the North cannot be considerable, even if it has significantly failed to end the war in the South. Significantly, Hanoi paused amid its self-congratulation in order more attention paid to improving transport in the north.

The Viet Cong were being harried in the South, and the government's influence was slowly being extended.

That fragile influence proved unable to prevent the mass attacks. It was, nonetheless, by the Viet Cong's own testimony, making their activities much more difficult.

The construction of the McMahon Barrage just below the demilitarized zone, which divides North from South Vietnam, was probably a factor. Even if, as Gen. Giap predicted, the barrier tied many American troops down in static roles, it would undoubtedly make continued reinforcement and resupply more difficult.

American action against the vital Ho Chi-minh trail through Laos was also being stepped up. Not only had bombing been intensified, but increased ground action had either been initiated or was in prospect.

Moreover, new electronic devices were coming into play. The importance the communists assign to their chief supply route is demonstrated by Giap's repeated warnings that the Americans were planning to "extend the war" to Laos.

Political factors arising from the Sino-Soviet quarrel and the changing situation in China may also have exerted a major influence on the decision.

Without large-scale Chinese and Russian aid, the North Vietnamese cannot defend North Vietnam and feed its people — much less press the war in the South. The realistic North Vietnamese may have faced up to the danger of substantial reduction of their support.

The backwash of the tumultuous Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution is placing in power in China pragmatic men who lack the Maoists' obsessive dedication to "worldwide liberation through people's war."

While considering the preservation of North Vietnam a vital interest, those men will, as time goes by, be less inclined to pour out their meagre resources, so badly needed in China, on the "liberation" of South Vietnam.

The prospect of decreasing Chinese assistance may therefore have helped shape Hanoi's decision to strike in force. While they will enjoy full military support, if the war is to be expanded as a result of their actions, they have a better prospect of Chinese military support now than they would in a year's time.

Fear Encirclement

Jerusalem's Arabs Alarmed

By IRENE REEBSON from Jerusalem

ISRAEL is forging ahead with the "Israelization" of Jerusalem. Palestinian Jerusalemites are alarmed at recent expropriations by the occupying authorities of large areas of land in east (i.e. Arab) Jerusalem, and the government's announcement that the construction of housing would begin there shortly.

Despite Israeli assurances that the apartment houses built on expropriated land would be available to "the entire population, regardless of race or religion," the Palestinians regard this move as further proof of Israel's policy of expansion.

The expropriated land covers about 80 acres between the northern sector of the city and the airport — an area included in a town planning project drawn up with the help of British advisers in 1962-63 — to link the former Jordanian sector of Jerusalem with the northern suburb of Beit Hanina on the Ramallah-Nablus road.

Under the Israeli plan the Palestinian sector of the city will be cut off from its northern suburb. Further expropriations east of Jerusalem, announced in the Israeli press recently, will complete the encirclement of the city and the isolation of the Palestinian population.

As things are, the Palestinians have been reduced for the past 20 years to living in a small fraction of a city which had been under their sovereignty for more than 1,000 years. After the 1948 Israeli war, Israel occupied 10 of the city's 12½ square miles, forcing the Arab population to accommodate itself in the remainder.

Today, 65,000 Palestinian inhabitants of Jerusalem live on less than one-seventh of the city's area, and much of this is taken up by the churches, mosques and holy shrines of the Old City, and by schools, hospitals, and administrative buildings.

Yet even in this restricted area, the Palestinians have little security of tenure. Since the June war, the Israeli authority has ordered the expropriation of property (hotels, shops, houses) of "absentee owners" — Jerusalemites who fled during the fighting and have not been allowed, or been willing, to return, even in some cases of absentees who were temporarily called to register their property.

In a strongly worded protest to the Israeli premier, Mr. Levi Eshkol, Mr. Ruhel Khatib, a former mayor of Jerusalem, who was dismissed by the Israeli last July, and a group of notables, have drawn the prime minister's attention to

The Russians are growing weary of the dangerous and protracted conflict in South Vietnam. Though forced by their desire to retain their ideological leadership of the communist bloc to support

Band, Moscow is not enthusiastic about the "liberation" of the South.

The Vietnamese, who have publicly complained that the Sino-Soviet quarrel was hampering their efforts, may have feared a reduction of Russian support. They may well have feared the translation into action of Russian advice that means other than war could better effect the reunification of South Vietnam.

Although none of the factors cited above can be positively established, there is little doubt that the war of attrition has been wearing the communists down.

(The Los Angeles Times)

test have been submitted to the UN secretary-general, U Thant, and a number of foreign governments.

But Israel appears clearly resolved to hold on to Jerusalem in the face of all opposition. And the protest will no doubt fall on deaf ears in Tel Aviv.

Israel's recent statement — through her ambassador to the UN — that she would be willing to negotiate certain aspects of the Jerusalem question have been interpreted by Israeli official sources here as meaning no more than granting free access to the Holy Places in the city and the right for Jordan to fly her flag on Harm es Sharif (the noble sanctuary). These would, I understand, be the limits of Israeli concessions over Jerusalem.

I Beg to Differ . . .

Odd-Duck Consumers

By FRANK LOWE

YOU, the consumer, are not doing your part to keep our economy in top condition. You, the consumer, are really falling down on the job.

You're not buying enough, spending enough, and, furthermore, you're chiseling — you're frightened by rising prices.

Now, before you outraged consumers come storming to tell me about the price of roast beef and children's shoes, let me explain that these opinions are not mine.

They are the opinions of a financial expert. His name is D. Dutton Morehouse, past president of the Federation of Financial Analysts. And in a speech a little while ago he ruminated about the strange ways of the consumer.

Mr. Morehouse, on the whole, didn't seem to approve of the Canadian consumer. In fact, he referred to the consumer as "an odd duck."

At this point my hackles began to stand up. After all, I am a consumer and as such would like the financial boys, whom I support, to speak of me with a little respect.

Then, as I read on, my hackles got even stiffer. The consumer, in the opinion of Mr. Morehouse, is an "odd duck" because he has the view that rising prices are a poor thing.

"When faced with rising prices," Mr. Morehouse said, "the consumer feels worse off."

British Government

Transfer of Power

By NORA BELOFF from London

AFTER being welcomed almost as an equal by President Johnson, Harold Wilson may find it hard to adjust himself to his new diminished role in his own government.

For at No. 10 at which he returned last Monday, he has lost his almost presidential status and now finds himself only one member of a collective leadership.

Whether or not — as one of his cabinet colleagues told me — he is back only "on probation," there is no doubt that the key "Gaitskellites" (followers of the late Labor Party leader, Hugh Gaitskell) among his top colleagues are determined to share in the exercise of power which they have won in recent weeks.

The secrecy with which cabinet activities are shrouded means that it will be some time before constitutional experts can ascertain how far the pattern of British government has changed.

What is certain is that the prime minister has established the precedent of making a series of crucial cabinet decisions dependent on counting heads. This was the method used to decide what items of public expenditures should be cut, and voting often took place with no clear indication of what the prime minister himself wanted.

Dramatic last-minute changes of position several times swung the balance. Explosive issues like the postponement of the school-leaving age and the cancelling of the F-111 order were decided by half-breath majorities. According to veteran civil servants, the in-fighting that went on behind the scenes at the ministries was the "dirtiest" they had ever seen.

On the other hand, official cabinet sessions were singularly restrained. The prime minister would ask the departmental minister to state his case, invite Roy Jenkins to give the treasury view, allow the deputy leader, George Brown, and the non-departmental minister to have their say, and then call for a show of hands, conscientiously counting them and announcing the result.

It was a complete departure from the normally informal method by which the prime minister listened to the arguments and then pronounced himself on what he euphemistically chose to call "the cabinet view" — with the understanding that anyone who could not go along with it could resign.

The shift from individual to collective leadership followed immediately after the cabinet almost fell apart in the row over arms to South Africa just before Christmas.

Wilson's principal colleagues had accused him of building up support in the rank and file of the Parliamentary Labor Party in order to impose his own views, and even those who agreed with him that the arms ban must be maintained vehemently objected to his use of party factions as a court of appeal against his colleagues — in this case principally George Brown and Denis Healey.

The right and centre "Gaitskellites" (who are said to be a majority both in the Labor Party and in the cabinet) were quick to organize the counter-offensive. Fellow ministers, whom Wilson dubbed "The Junta," forced him to link the decision on the ban with the news of major cuts in social spending which they thought necessary to preserve international confidence.

As soon as negotiations started on what the cuts should be, however, The Junta — if there ever was one — broke into feuding parts. Each minister (except Patrick Gordon Walker, who now hardly counts) defended his own department.

And the Gaitskellites themselves were sharply split on the overseas cuts between the East of Suez men and the Europeans.

Now that this particular fight is over, Wilson's critics are beginning to talk to one another again; not to work out any positive program but rather to see how they can prevent the prime minister from allying off of their control and once more trying to whip up support from the party's left wing to restore his own position as the one man who can hold the party together.

Given the tight financial situation, his area of manoeuvre is limited. Some of his critics suspect he may make concessions on the foreign front; for example, by disassociating Britain from the United States or by withdrawing the application for Britain to join the Common Market.

Alternatively, he might throw a bone to the left on domestic cuts — softening up on wage controls, selective benefits, or indirect taxation, or proposing some new measure of public ownership.

The critics are all the more nervous because the government's efforts to restore party discipline have foundered in ridicule. The 24 rebels who refused to endorse the cuts have been formally forbidden to attend party group meetings for a month. One young MP, Brian Walker, has suggested a much more fearsome punishment would be to force them to attend all the meetings, clocking in and out.

The record of the prime minister's own attitude towards the rebels is felt to be alarmingly erratic. Sometimes he chides them as mad dogs and at others professes the plums of patronage. The unfortunate chief whip, John Silkin, can hardly forget his own recent discomfiture.

He warned Mrs. Gwyneth Dunwoody that if she voted against the government on the Common Market she must never expect any promotion. She defied him and yet was singled out for office in Wilson's very next reshuffle — even though few thought she had compelling qualifications.

All Wilson's "Gaitskellites" colleagues are now girding themselves for a stiff struggle, both in Parliament and in the unions. And they are resolved to see that the prime minister is not allowed to break ranks, at least until the economic crisis is over.

It is in the context of the continuing struggle that the refusal of disgruntled ministers to resign makes sense. The case of Denis Healey, whose whole defence program was slashed, is revealing. Many MPs, Tory as well as Labor, believe he decided not to resign in order to hold off the threatened resignation of his chiefs of staff.

For opposite reasons Barbara Castle was also induced to settle for social cuts which were anathema rather than resign. She is the recognized champion of the fundamentalist Left (one of the rebels told me that if she wasn't a woman she would have been their leader) and they like to think she is fighting their fight in the cabinet.

New Words for Dum, Dum, De, Dum

O Canada, It's Different

From UPI
Remember how you used to sing "O Canada, Dum, Dum, De, Dum, Dum, Dum?" Well, there are new words to it now and it has been recommended as the national anthem.

Friday, a joint committee of the Commons and Senate in Ottawa tabled its first report on national and royal anthems and unanimously recommended O Canada — one verse in each of the two official languages — become the national anthem and God Save the Queen be the royal anthem for Canada.

For the hummers, there is even a chance to learn all the words — including some minor changes — in the proposed national anthem.

Changed are the fifth, seventh and eighth lines to read:

"From far and wide, O Canada
We stand on guard for thee.
God keep our land glorious and free!
O Canada, we stand on guard for thee."
The original lyrics in the lines read:
"And stand on guard O Canada,
We stand on guard for thee.
O Canada, glorious and free!"
We stand on guard, we stand on guard for thee."

The committee also recommended by the committee is an unchanged French-language version of the proposed national anthem, written by Judge Adolphe Basile Routhier of Quebec, who died in 1908.

The committee report also noted the existence of lyrics in other ethnic languages used by Canadian groups.

"To foster closer and warmer ties between all citizens of this country, your committee feels that there should be encouragement for such groups to sing the anthems (national and royal) in their own language on suitable occasions," the report stated.

The committee acknowledged the assistance it was given by representative groups which appeared and made recommendations during the 12 committee hearings.

It also thanked the more than 1,000 interested individuals who submitted proposed lyrics in English, in French, or a combination thereof.

Ottawa composer-singer Rex LeLacheur helped the committee sort through the 1,000-plus entries.

The committee, whose chairman was Toronto-Padina Liberal MP Perry Ryan, did not recommend any change in either the English or French texts of God Save the Queen.

Following are the English and French versions recommended for O Canada, with the English-language changes in boldface type:

O Canada! Our home and native land!
True patriot love in all thy sons command.
With glowing hearts we see thee rise,
The True North, strong and free.
From far and wide, O Canada,
We stand on guard for thee.
God keep our land glorious and free!
O Canada, we stand on guard for thee.
O Canada, we stand on guard for thee!

O Canada! Terre de nos aïeux,
Ton front est ceint de fleurons glorieux!
Car ton bras sait porter l'épée,
Il sait porter la croix!
Ton histoire est une épopée
Des plus brillants exploits.
Et ta valeur, de foi trempée,
Protègera nos foyers et nos droits.
Protègera nos foyers et nos droits.

Woman, Bachelor Clash

Separatists Split Today?

From CP
The split which has been threatening for several months in Quebec's largest separatist party may come to a head today at a regular meeting of its ruling central council in Montreal.

There have been rumors of trouble in the Rassemblement pour l'indépendance nationale since left-wing leader Andrée Ferretti, a mother of two, became party vice-president last fall over the opposition of President Pierre Bourgault.

Dapper Bourgault, a 33-year-old bachelor, has announced he will ask for the expulsion of Mrs. Ferretti at the party's central council meeting in Quebec City.

The president told a group of party militants that Mrs. Ferretti had to go to "put an end to internal dissension in the party."

He also announced he will ask the council to form at least "a common temporary front with Rene Levesque's newly-formed separatist group, the Mouvement Souveraineté-Association."

Mrs. Ferretti, who has been described as a marxist socialist, is said to be opposed to any kind of fusion with the former Liberal welfare minister's group.

Bourgault said he will also call for the expulsion of Luc Racine, regional director of the Montreal area, which encompasses about half of the 15,000 members claimed by the RIN.

"This has nothing to do with a right-left conflict," the president said. "It's part of a conspiracy to oust me and overcome those who share my desire to see a common separatist front in Quebec."

But the petite vice-president does not even see eye to eye with Bourgault on the cause of the split.

BACKGROUND

Special Military Aid

Korean Airforce Punch Boosted by U.S. Loan

From UPI
The U.S. has agreed to reinforce South Korea's air force with a squadron of F-4C Phantoms, to be provided under President Johnson's proposed special military aid program, Defence Minister Kim Sung-fun said Friday in Seoul.

Kim said purchase of the Phantoms would be made with part of the $100,000,000 in special military aid promised by the U.S. to South Korea.

Seoul Press reports Friday said one of the key points in the U.S.-South Korean agreements reached during recent talks with presidential envoy Cyrus Vance was to make use of the special aid funds to ensure South Korean air superiority over North Korea.

proved in advance by the defence ministers of the two countries.

American officials in Seoul disclosed, meanwhile, that the U.S. and North Korea had held a new private meeting at the truce village of Panmunjom Thursday to discuss the case of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, seized by the North Koreans last month along with its 83 crewmembers.

It was the sixth such meeting since the incident and produced no progress.

However, Reggie Chartrand, another well-known separatist figure, sees the split as a rightist-leftist conflict.

Leader of Les Chevaliers de l'indépendance, a group which often participates in RIN demonstrations, he said earlier that "it was time to get rid of the Marxists in the party."

In a statement to the press he called for the expulsion of Mrs. Ferretti and her supporters.

This is the second time in less than a year that possible fusion with another separatist group has been coupled with rumors of a lack of solidarity in the RIN.

U.S. Boats Intruded, Northerners Claim

From UPI
North Korea said Friday that armed U.S. boats have intruded into North Korean territorial waters. She accused the U.S. of trying to "provoke a war in Korea."

The official North Korean central news agency said the intrusion of the ships followed a "grave attack from the ground on the post on the North Korean side of the Keumsungmun River."

That criticism, he said, had weighted a great deal in his decision.

In reaching the decision to run, he had concluded, in all honesty, that there were some fields — in which experience wasn't much help.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson was an able and clever politician. But what did his experience do to help him solve the problems of the pound?

Intrusion was part of the "ceaseless war manoeuvring of the U.S. imperialist aggressor troops to provoke a war in Korea at any moment."

The report, monitored in Tokyo, warned that "the Korean people's army and the heroic Korean people were completely ready to return the reprisals of the U.S. imperialists and deal them a heavier crushing blow each time."

Earlier Friday, the news agency reported that the Pueblo's crew recently filed a letter of apology and pleaded for "humanitarian treatment."

Before the party convention in Trois-Rivières last October, there was a movement afoot, led by Bourgault, to join with the Rassemblement national, a separatist movement headed by Gilles Giguère, independent member in the House of Commons.

Bourgault did not think a final decision would be made at today's meeting, but he thought his motion for the expulsion of the Ferretti group and the fusion with Levesque's movement would carry at a meeting of the party's general assembly.

'It Started As Huge Joke' scious minds of the press, it started off as a huge practical joke on the Liberal party."

Trudeau said that it seemed to him, reading the press in the early stages, that "many of you were saying, 'We dare the Liberal party to choose a guy like Trudeau... We know they never will.'"

"You would never have said that if you believed the Liberal party would take up the challenge. It was a good joke on the Liberal party."

"The joke blew up in your faces and mine. People took it seriously."

When the response built up among MPs and others, he said, he began to wonder "if this whole thing wasn't a bit more serious than you and I intended."

Trudeau answered the criticism that he is inexperienced, the most inexperienced among the important candidates.

That criticism, he said, had weighted a great deal in his decision.

In reaching the decision to run, he had concluded, in all honesty, that there were some fields — in which experience wasn't much help.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson was an able and clever politician. But what did his experience do to help him solve the problems of the pound?

President Johnson had been in politics a long time, but his experience was not "helping him very much in solving the war in Vietnam."

Trudeau's point was that adaptability could be more important than experience.

Now a candidate, Trudeau is putting himself on the record on the issues.

He is against economic nationalism, which he called an excessive doctrine that weakens a country.

And he wants an information service, both ways, between the government and the people.

A government, he said, cannot rely on a poll every three months to know what the people feel.

Other countries have such information services, he said, and he did not see it as a propaganda arm of government.

Trudeau did not see himself as a man of the left, in a doctrinaire sense.

At the start of his seven-week campaign, Trudeau sees broad support for him across the country, and he says he does not want votes that might come to him just because he is from Quebec.

As he sees it, the Liberal party is a national party and he wants to be its national leader.

Highway Charges

right that the family of a minister of the crown should be involved in companies which deal with the minister for such things as highway access and subdivision rights?"

Mr. Macfarlane, who admitted his sons were involved in land deals during his speech to a packed legislature Thursday night, said outside the chamber following Friday's attacks: "If any of this happened it's absolutely without my knowledge."

The minister suggested his son Bill, 24, who lives at home and he claimed "works for all sorts of companies buying property anywhere," could have used the Gagliardi address for reference only, forwarding assessment notices later to the companies which purchased the land.

"It's his home, you know, he's not married and lives there too," said Mr. Gagliardi. "The only thing I've got to be concerned about," the minister said, "and it's my paramount concern, is that none of my family or any acquaintance of mine gets preferential treatment from the department of highways.

"If you can show me that then I'm in trouble."

Attorney-General Bonner, when questioned by reporters outside the house rejected the idea of a judicial inquiry into alleged mismanagement by the highways department of property deals along major highways.

He said the government was content to leave issues raised to the judgment of the public. However, the attorney-general said: "The problem is to cut through all the rather nasty thing . . . and look at the bare facts with all the adjectives stripped off."

He was asked whether the government would investigate the point raised by Mr. Macdonald concerning the delivery of an assessment notice on a Blue River property to the minister's home in Ka-loops.

This is a matter which is between Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Gagliardi. It is not a question of charges. It is a question of what is proper."

Both Mr. Macfarlane and Mr. Macdonald agreed the case of a man who was allegedly offered $25,000 by an unidentified third person to lie about the highways minister and force his resignation was strictly a side issue. The NDP called it "a smokescreen" and the Liberals said it was a "red herring."

The Oak Bay Liberal several times called on Deputy Speaker Herbert Bruch to quiet government backbenchers who were keeping up a steady heckling as he criticized Mr. Gagliardi for failing to answer criticism with facts and for counter-attacking by innuendo.

There were cries of "smear" and "slandering" from the NDP benches when Mr. Macdonald referred to suggestions by government ministers that the opposition in general and Mr. Macdonald in particular might have been connected with break-ins at the offices of Mr. Gagliardi's sons last week.

But the NDP also came in for criticism from Mr. Macdonald, who said "it began without a formal charge, but it was no less an attack because it was skillfully or artfully presented. We also witnessed the government's defence, not made on the basis of calm or logic or reason, but charged with emotion and bitterness."

"The disease is growing and the government does nothing to lay this matter at rest. If the NDP have any further information about the Gagliardi activities, they should tell it. We must get to the root because it's rotten."

Mr. Macfarlane added: "The witch-hunt must stop. The murdering of reputations by innuendo must stop."

There is only one way this matter can be put to rest, the Liberal said. "The whole dirty business must be brought into the open and subjected to impartial judicial scrutiny. This would provide the Gagliardi family with a forum in which to defend themselves," he added.

All the evidence could then be sifted and the truth arrived at.

"This is the only way the public can be satisfied that no wrongdoing has occurred and that no mismanagement has taken place," said Mr. Macfarlane. He added, however, the issues should not be tossed into the political arena by referring it to a legislative committee like the one which investigated the highways department in 1963.

There was also a reference, though no names were mentioned, to the long opposition fight which led to the final charge and conviction of former forestry minister Robert Sommers for accepting a bribe.

Mr. Macdonald denied that his party had used innuendo in attacking the highways minister and the government. He said: "Anything I have said is based on public documents and statements."

"Mr. Gagliardi appeals for tears and sympathy because his sons have been involved in land speculation at highway junctions," he told the house. "Tears and sympathy for whom?"

"The land speculators who are reaping a bonanza at key highway interchanges?" Mr. Macdonald said wherever a speculator wins, somebody loses, "and that person who loses is the public of B.C." He added: "No one weeps for the little people who have no access to the department of highways."

He told of a pioneer family in Blue River and ran a gas pump until they woke up one morning to find the new Yellowhead highway had bypassed the village and Northland had bought property with highway access.

"The business future of that family is all over. But no one weeps for them or their sons or their daughters. They are just part of the little, forgotten people of the province."

Mr. Macdonald said the main political issue he raised, and still raises, is simply that if the public's highway tax dollar creates big land profits, why shouldn't the public, and not the private speculator receive the benefit?

He said there are "hundreds of thousands of dollars involved" in land projects at Kamloops, Blue River, Cache Creek and McBride. "Whoever the speculators are — and it really doesn't matter who they are — the land profiteering is on a huge scale," the NDP member said.

There is a complex series of interconnecting links between land development companies and the minister's sons, said Mr. Macdonald, "but the records are shrouded in darkness and mystery and night."

of little people are going to be hurt," he said.

Mr. Bennett said outside the house that Mr. Macdonald had made a clear point. He called it a difference in philosophy as to how development of land adjoining highways should be handled, by private or public interests, and the proper place to debate the question was in the legislature.

as good citizens and good workers."

After nearly four hours of emergency debate, the legislation making the ferry system a branch of the highways department was adopted by a vote of 35 to 15, with the Liberals voting with the government and the NDP opposing it.

If the men refused to work the government is expected to fire the men and hire new crews, a government spokesman said this could be done but stressed "it is still some way off."

The official indicated that the government hoped by bringing the ferries in to the highway department to create a psychological break in the present strike and at the same time create a "bridge" by which the men could return to work.

When a general strike of civil servants was launched in March, 1959, the government obtained injunctions to end picketing and the employees went back to work almost immediately. The cabinet Friday morning proclaimed a section of the constitution act which forbids picketing on private property.

Officers met in six terminals Friday night and voted overwhelmingly to withdraw their services at midnight.

"I can't see the new legislation makes any difference," said spokesman said. "I don't see that we are any more civil servants than we were before."

He confirmed that the majority of the officers had taken the civil service oath about 2½ years ago.

"Under various forms of duress," he added.

The spokesman also said that he had discussed the matter with the ferry workers business agent and both groups agreed they were ready to talk with management, cabinet ministers, or whoever was ready to discuss it.

"I must confess I am rather bewildered," said Mr. Thorner commenting on the government action.

"I was under the impression we were under the civil service for three years."

Striking ferry workers at Nanaimo "may just not happen to read the newspapers, answer the telephone or listen to newscasts" on which officials are urging them to return to work Sunday.

Premier Bennett first showed the government's tactics when he rose in the Legislature when the afternoon sitting began and read a statement which was later condemned by the opposition as a "historical account" of the ferry system.

It gave no indication of how the government planned to end the strike but Mr. Bennett later introduced an amendment to the bill which was originally intended to bring the ferry authority into the government.

April 1. The amendment said the changeover would be effective as soon as the bill received final approval.

NO GUARANTEE

The premier told the House: "If the government must accept full responsibility, the government must have full authority."

Mr. Bennett said the intention was to make the employees "full-fledged, first class civil servants, no more and no less."

Opposition Leader Strachan said the "guiltless legislation" wouldn't make the ferry workers first class employees.

"They can't take the word of this government. They are without a guarantee that their rights as first-class citizens will be kept."

He said several times in the past ferry workers have been

Kiernan

ened to withdraw their services because they had not been treated right and this time "the government thought they'd accept anything the government wanted to do with them."

"When workers lose faith in an employer you can't stop them from protesting. These men are asking for recognition of their bargaining rights, the same as those available to B.C. Hydro and the Pacific Great Eastern railway."

Liberal Leader Perrault said the strike was the "end product of government failure."

Bill 10 was an attempt at creating an "illusion of action," he claimed, adding there would be "a major dislocation of government employees in the next few months."

NEW APPROACH

Randolph Harding (NDP, Revelstoke-Slocan) said it was a "strike breaking, union busting" bill. The government had sent Justice Nathan Nemetz to Sweden to find a new approach to B.C.'s labor-management problems but bill 10 "will shake organized labor from top to bottom when they find out what you have done."

Hydro workers had bargaining rights and the government pledge of special privileges to none was "just a bunch of Social Credit baloney."

URGENT ISSUE

The government was setting an example for all employers, argued Gordon Dowling (NDP, Burnaby-Edmonds). The ferry strike was an urgent issue but it wasn't of sufficient urgency to "take away the workers' rights."

Premier Bennett jumped to his feet to say the PGE workers have had bargaining rights but they had struck the railroad.

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said integration of the ferry system into the highways department will give the government reason to apply for federal subsidies on the same basis that eastern coastal services qualify for subsidies.

Asked what action his group would take, Mr. Thorner said: "WHO IS MANAGEMENT?"

"Until I hear from management I have no idea what action will be taken," and added wistfully that he didn't know "who management is anymore."

Friday afternoon the ferry workers association sent a telegram to Dr. Hugh Morrison, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, requesting reinstatement of 160 ferry workers who were laid off in a government austerity move.

Government to Increase Recreation—Use Forests

The provincial government during the next five years will open up and develop about 225,000 acres of publicly-owned forests for recreational uses, Conservation Minister Kiernan announced Friday.

To be called recreational areas — differentiating them from parks — they will be forests under sustained yield management practices. In many cases, said the minister, they will adjoin existing parks.

EXCEPT IN HARVEST

"We are trying to come up with areas which will be available for recreation at all times except when the timber is being harvested," said Mr. Kiernan.

"There are many places where we can put riding and hiking trails which people can enjoy until the timber reaches maturity."

In an interview after he had spoken to the Legislature, Mr. Kiernan estimated that about 225,000 acres would be available for "recreational areas," during the next five years.

IN EXISTENCE

Some such reserves already exist in the Sayward forest on Vancouver Island, he said. He went on to suggest that the area stretching from Cultus Lake, in the Fraser Valley, to the United States boundary also has potential as a recreational area.

Mr. Kiernan also announced that the government was getting out of Class B parks, a definition which he said set areas aside for public use but banned activities which were "unduly detrimental."

TO BE UPGRADED

He said people expect a park to have certain qualities which often could not be maintained under the Class B category. Much of the land in that category will be upgraded to Class A park, of which there are about 6,500,000 acres in B.C.

Mr. Kiernan said only one more piece of property has to be acquired before all of Butte Lake will be within Strathcona Park.

When the government acquired most of Forbuden Plateau last summer in a land exchange deal, it brought within provincial jurisdiction about two-thirds of the shoreline of Butte.

EASIER TO HANDLE

All of the remainder except one parcel has been acquired through "quiet negotiation," said Mr. Kiernan.

Province Jumps Fish, Game Fees

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kiernan announced his fee increases Friday for British Columbia's hunters and fishermen.

At the same time, he said the $200,000 extra revenue will be spent accelerating wildlife conservation projects.

The increases:

Resident fishing licences from the present $2 to $3; non-resident fishing licences from $2 to $3.50; deer tags from 50 cents to $1; moose licences from $5 to $6 and elk licences from $3 to $5.

"There has been considerable urging that we should devote more funds to conservation," Mr. Kiernan told the Legislature. "At the same time, it has been intimated by people who use the resource that they would be willing to pay more for such conservation."

At the same time, Mr. Kiernan announced a hunter training program will get off the ground about May 1, when B.C. will acquire an "expert" on the subject from Alberta.

He is Paul Presidente, now involved with that province's hunter training program and "one of the most able men in this field to be found in North America."

New hunting licence applicants in the fall of 1970 probably will have to be examined for their competence in handling a rifle, identification and survival in the bush.

The hunter safety program will cost about $40,000 a year, the minister explained.

Evidence Welcome In Drug Meetings

The legislative committee investigating marijuana and LSD will hold its organizational meeting Thursday and probably will hear its first witnesses on Feb. 26.

Chairman John Tisdale (SC-Saanich and the Islands) said Friday: the Thursday meeting will be of an organizational nature, when members will discuss the agenda for future meetings.

He also said he hopes any member of the public with evidence to offer will write him or Robert Wenman (SC-Delta), committee secretary, at the legislative buildings.

The legislature's standing committee on health and education earlier this week was asked by Education Minister Peterson to investigate the use of LSD, marijuana and other "psychedelic drugs" among B.C.'s young people.

The Feb. 26 meeting has been scheduled for 9 a.m. Other meetings: 11 a.m. Feb. 29, 10 a.m. March 1 and 10 a.m. March 5.

Treated Well

Three U.S. Pilots Freed by Hanoi

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Three American pilots, the first U.S. airmen to be freed after capture in North Vietnam, arrived here Friday night after their release in Hanoi.

One of the officers, speaking for the group, said he was well, but "physically a little weary" and "emotionally overcome."

FLOWN TO BASE

They were flown on to the U.S. Air Force base at Udorn, Thailand, where they underwent physical examinations.

They are Maj. Norris Miller Overly, 39, of Detroit; Capt. John David Black, 30, of Johnson City, Tenn., and Lieut. David Matheny, 23, of South Bend, Ind.

Captured American soldiers have been released by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, but the North Vietnamese had never previously freed airmen who flew bombing missions over the North.

PEACE DELEGATION

The pilots arrived in Vientiane aboard an International Control Commission plane. With them were Rev. Daniel Berrigan of Cornell University and Prof. Howard Zinn of Boston University, the two-man peace delegation that flew to Hanoi from New York two weeks ago after the North Vietnamese announced the three flyers would be released as a gesture for the Tet Lunar New Year holiday.

Dressed in ill-fitting, grey cotton suits and dark blue turtle neck sweaters, the pilots appeared bewildered by the camera lights that flashed on them when they stepped from the ICC plane.

TOILETLESS VOICE

Overly looked haggard. Speaking in a toiletless voice, he gave his name rank and serial number, then said:

"I was shot down on Sept. 11, 1967. I was treated well as I observed other captured American pilots being treated. I would like to express my gratitude to the Vietnamese people."

Berrigan told a news conference that North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van Dong had told him and Zinn in Hanoi that President Johnson's "San Antonio formula" for peace negotiations "imposed conditions."

'CONQUEROR'S DEMAND'

"Johnson demanded productive conversation," Pham was said to have told the two men. "Only a conqueror can ask this. We repeat our demand for unconditional cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam. At that time we will talk seriously."

Destroyer Grounding

Probers Blame Inferior Link

A navy statement Friday blamed a flaw in the anchor cable of the destroyer-escort HMCS Qu'Appelle for the grounding of the vessel at Weir's Beach on the night of Jan. 15-16.

In the statement, Rear Admiral John Charles, commander maritime forces Pacific, commended officers and men for their "high degree of seamanship" in refloating the vessel.

The statement was issued after a lengthy inquiry.

"It has been concluded," the admiral reported, "that grounding was a direct result of the failure of a link in the anchor cable and the consequent loss of the anchor which, combined with high winds and seas, resulted in the ship being driven onto the shore in a matter of minutes."

"It has since been ascertained there was a material flaw in the link which failed."

Admiral Charles described a broken anchor cable as "a most unusual incident" and added "to our knowledge there have been no previous incidents of this nature in a ship of the Canadian navy since the Second World War."

Anchor cables of all operational units of the command are being surveyed and tested.

Exercise for Divers

The admiral said the Qu'Appelle has just completed a special operational exercise involving naval divers.

He said it was necessary for the warship to anchor close to the beach to enable divers to operate from the shoreline.

Upon completion of the exercise, the warship remained anchored in a position "which was considered safe in view of prevailing weather conditions."

Two sister ships, he noted, St. Croix and Saskatchewan, were in the same anchorage at the same time, but neither experienced any difficulty and no anchors dragged.

All three ships reverted to four hours notice for steam "customary in the conditions which prevailed at the time," he pointed out.

When it was noticed aboard Qu'Appelle that the ship was not being held by its anchor, the second anchor was dropped.

Due to the movement of the ship, rising winds and increasing seas, there was insufficient time for the second anchor to hold the vessel off the beach.

In conclusion, the admiral noted that refloating operations were conducted, "in the face of winds and seas which continued to increase, with a high degree of seamanship on the part of the officers and men involved and they are to be commended."

The Qu'Appelle suffered damage amounting to about $50,000. Her twin propellers were badly damaged, a sonar dome collapsed and a rudder received minor damage.

Tips You Off

NEW YORK — I counted my tips for three days in New York and find I face 15 tipping situations each day. Fifteen times each day I must decide how much gratitude to show to waiters, doormen, hat-check girls, the man in the men's room, barbers, taxi drivers, the girl at the coffee counter, bellboys, and cocktail waitresses.

It comes to $15 a day. A few years ago, a magazine did a survey of businessmen visiting New York. Their tips averaged better than $20 a day. So maybe I'm doing well.

The major part of your tipping here will be in restaurants. You will never get by on 15 per cent in a top restaurant. You will be split between a waiter captain (who takes your order) and a waiter (who serves it).

The expected tip will be 20 per cent — a third to the captain, the rest to the waiter. In lesser restaurants it's 15 per cent for the waiter.

Tips are exacted like tribute — a New York taxi driver will tell you off loudly if you don't tip. New Yorkers themselves are used to the system and pay without resentment.

"I would so appreciate knowing how to tip on our trip to Europe as we know nothing about the customs ..."

On the Continent, 15 per cent is added to hotel and restaurant bills for service. This is supposed to be the tip. But the hotel help and waiters don't look at it that way. So the local people leave a little change at the table — maybe 5 per cent more. And they tip the porters and room maids a little, too.

You are not used to tipping the desk man who gives you your key. But HE is used to it. And expects it. In Europe this isn't the desk clerk who writes you in and shows you to your room. (You don't tip him by the way.) After you have been ushered to your room, you get your keys from the concierge — the man in uniform with crossed keys on his collar. He gets the tip when you leave.

How much? About $2 a week in a moderate hotel. Naturally, it depends on the hotel. You aren't going to tip on the Left Bank of Paris as you would at the George V.

Some odd tips: Wine waiters are tipped separately. In Greece, tip the waiter on the plate. Put a little loose change on the tablecloth for the bus boy. In England, if the roast is rolled up to your table for carving, you tip the carver then and there.

In England and Ireland, tipping is like North America. Though some English hotels are now adding a 10 per cent service charge — a miserable idea since the help still expect a full tip. In restaurants, the English use 12 per cent as a tipping rule rather than 15.

In pubs, the bartender is not tipped. (Often a barmaid.) You can offer to buy him (or her) a beer.

"We will be on a South Pacific cruise and want to tip correctly. We have heard the amount should be 10 per cent of the cost of the trip ..."

Nothing in the tipping line is argued more hotly than ship-board tipping. I go against the 10 per cent. A 42-day cruise in the South Pacific costs several thousand dollars and 10 per cent works out at a fantastic daily tip.

The tip should be on the table, room and deck service, not on the total cost which includes the tip.

Formosans Claim Expo Loss

MONTREAL (CP) — The Nationalist Chinese government is seeking damages totalling $1,234,450 from the Canadian Corporation in Montreal as a result of a fire last May 30 which seriously damaged its Expo pavilion and destroyed some of its exhibits.

In an action deposited in Quebec Superior Court Wednesday, the Formosa-based Republic of China named as co-defendant with Expo Hagan-Harris Co. of Canada Ltd., whose employees were carrying out cleaning operations in the pavilion on the night of the fire.

B.C. Hydro Loses $1,573,879

B.C. Hydro's metropolitan transit services had an operating loss of $1,573,879 during the first nine months of the current fiscal year, which ends March 31.

This information was tabled in the legislature Thursday by Resources Minister Ray Williston, who also is a director of Hydro.

In addition, Hydro had a plant expenditure of $1,235,794 between April 1 and Dec. 31, 1967. Added to the operating loss, this plant expenditure would bring to $2,809,673 the excess of expenditures over revenue. Revenues totalled $11,251,591 and operating expenses came to $12,825,460.

Interfering Board Scored

BURNABY (CP) — A team of investigators from the Canadian University Teachers' Association has criticized administration of Simon Fraser University.

The three-man team, appointed last year to study reported breakdowns in communication between faculty and administration, called for more forthright administration and a redirection of decision-making powers.

The report said the board of governors interferes excessively with day-to-day university business, and recommended more delegation of authority to faculty.

Regina Tables Fluoride Plan

REGINA (CP) — A motion to begin fluoridation of the city's water supplies without referring it to the voters was tabled by council for one week. Fluoridation was defeated on three previous trips to the polls, in 1954, 1958 and 1965.

U.S. Tracks Red Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Soviet bombers in two flights approached within 70 miles of the North American coast line Feb. 9, Canadian and American officials disclosed Friday.

American jet fighter planes intercepted them and the Soviet planes later left the area of their own accord, the U.S. defence department reported.

The department said U.S. Air Force F-102s flew near enough to identify visually two of the Soviet planes over North Atlantic waters.

NOT HOSTILE

"The Soviet aircraft evidenced no hostile intentions and the interception was made solely for the purpose of identification," a department statement said.

"The aircraft flew parallel to the coast of Newfoundland for approximately one hour."

AIR SPACE

"At no time did they enter the air space of the North American continent. They turned away of their own accord and were joined by three other aircraft on their way out of the area."

The department clearly sought to minimize the incident, although one officer said "we don't want to make it sound too routine." He said there have been similar Soviet flights over North Atlantic waters in the past but "this is the nearest they've come in a long time."

TRAINING FLIGHTS

Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara told reporters he doesn't feel the Russian planes were testing U.S. defence. He characterized them as training flights such as have been carried out before in that area.

The defence department described the planes as Soviet Bear-type aircraft. This would be the Soviet TU-20, code-named by NATO as the Bear, which is a turbine-propeller plane capable of flying 500 miles an hour and ranging 9,000 miles with a ceiling of 55,000 feet.

RADAR TRACKS

In Halifax, Commodore Noel Cogdon, chief of staff for operations of the Canadian Forces Maritime Command, said radar stations in Newfoundland and tracked the Soviet flights.

The North American Air Defence Command, however, he said, also had detected the planes.

F-102 supersonic jets were scrambled. The U.S. defence department would not say how many F-102s were involved, where they came from, how near they flew to the Bears or how long they tracked them.

"But there was no big alert," an officer said.

American B-52 Stratofor-traces equipped with hydrogen bombs constantly fly the fringes of the Arctic region near Soviet territory to be ready for an attack in case nuclear war ever occurred.

The B-52s are prohibited from passing a certain geographical point—the so-called "red line." The defence department refused to say how near this is to Soviet territory.

Russia is not known to conduct similar airborne-alert flights.

Newfoundland Incident

Russian Flight Sparks Queries in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — A flight of Russian bombers that scooted over the Atlantic east of Newfoundland a week ago raised a series of questions in the Commons Friday.

Outside the House, the defence department said two of the Soviet jet bombers were quickly identified by interceptors and "turned away of their own accord" after they were spotted. They formed up with three other bombers and headed out of the area.

Defence Minister Cadieux told the Commons the "Bear D" Russian bombers were intercepted "well off our coasts" in international air space.

Their presence was used to test interception and identification procedures by the interceptors.

The defence department report of the incident said the identification was made by F-102 interceptors of North American Air Defence Command about 100 miles off the Newfoundland coast.

"At no time" did the Russian planes enter North American air space, the department said. The NORAD planes had performed only "a routine identification."

The defence department described the planes as "Bear-type."

PLANES SPOTTED

The "Bear" is the Tupolev-20, a bomber with a range of about 7,800 miles.

A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) started the exchange in the Commons by asking about reports that Soviet bombers had been flying over Canadian territory in the Newfoundland area.

Cadieux said "some foreign" planes had been spotted but were over international waters.

Pressed by David Fulton (PC—Kamloops), he identified them as Russian.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) asked what right the NORAD planes had to intercept over international waters. Cadieux said the action had been limited to identification because the planes were flying in international air space.

NO NOTES

Nielsen also asked whether a protest had been lodged with the Russians or an explanation demanded for their presence. External Affairs Minister Martin said there could be no exchange of notes on such an incident, where the Soviet planes remained "well off" the Canadian coast.

The defence department declined to say whether the interceptors were Canadian or American or what base they flew from.

For Schools

Councils to Continue Collection of Taxes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Educational and educational taxes

Minister Peterson said Friday that new school legislation introduced in Victoria last week doesn't mean that school boards will have to set up their own tax-collecting machinery.

Mr. Peterson said in an interview that school tax billing will still be done by city councils even after the new legislation goes into effect, using a new tax form which shows municipal and educational taxes separately.

School board officials had expressed fears that they would have to set up their own tax-collecting agencies. The legislation makes the boards the authority for educational taxing allowing them to fix mill rates for school purposes.

"There will be no proliferation of tax-collecting machinery," said Mr. Peterson.

Bright Future Forecast In B.C. Construction

VANCOUVER (CP) — Investment in British Columbia's construction industry will soon reach $1,500,000,000 annually, Labour Minister Peterson said Friday.

He told plumbing and mechanical contractors from B.C. and Washington that there will be a levelling-off period after the few years "but I'm not pessimistic about our future economic growth."

He said the Roberts Bank superport south of Vancouver will be one of several new enterprises and secondary industries will be established to draw on vast supplies of new power.

Seafarers Returning To Labor Congress

OTTAWA (CP) — After almost two years of wavering on the issue, the executive council of the Canadian Labor Congress voted Friday to readmit the Seafarers' International Union of Canada to congress membership.

The SIU was expelled from the central labor body in 1959 after it refused to halt a raid on the membership of the National Association of Marine Engineers, a CLC affiliate. A 1960 CLC convention confirmed the expulsion.

RANKS PROTEST

Actually, the move was more of a protest against the one-man rule of Hal Banks, then SIU president, and hoodlum violence he directed against rival unions.

Banks was fired in 1964 by federal trustees appointed to supervise the affairs of the SIU and five other maritime unions and bring an end to labor violence of the Great Lakes.

Friday's decision by the CLC's 21-member executive council upheld a recommendation from the executive committee, the eight-man inner cabinet of the congress. This followed an all-day conference here with SIU leaders late in January.

HALF HAD JOBS

The SIU claimed 14,000 members under Banks, but only half actually had jobs. It now puts its membership at 7,500.

In addition to accepting the SIU, which represents ordinary sailors on coastal and inland vessels, the congress also extended affiliation to its officer section, known as the Canadian Marine Officers Union.

Back in 1962 and 1964 CLC conventions adopted a pledge that the SIU would never be taken back as long as Banks or any of his executives were in control.

The 1968 CLC convention at Winnipeg reversed an earlier decision that the SIU could not be readmitted without approval by a full convention. It adopted a resolution empowering the executive council to readmit the SIU whenever it saw fit.

THEY'VE SIGNED

Both the SIU and its officer section will be entitled to send delegates to the CLC's biennial policy convention at Toronto May 6-10.

Donald MacDonald, acting CLC president, said the SIU and the CMOU have signed an understanding to abide by the constitution of the congress and uphold all of its principles and policies. The Canadian and American officers of the two unions also accepted the principle that no CLC affiliate has exclusive jurisdiction in the maritime field.

"They also made a commitment that no former member or former officer of the Canadian affiliate can exercise influence over its policies and actions," MacDonald said.

Strangler Hunt

Murder Suspect Held by Police

GAFFNEY, S.C. (UPI) — Searchers found the nude, strangled body of a 15-year-old girl in a creek bed Friday and quickly arrested a white 30-year-old part-time textile worker — smashing the reign of terror of the Gaffney strangler.

When authorities announced that Lee Roy Martin, father of three children, had been charged with the kidnap murder of Opel Dianne Buckson, hundreds of towns people thronged into the courthouse and gathered around the old black sedan in which the 15-year-old Negro girl allegedly was abducted.

"We charged him with the (murder of) the colored girl for the time being," said Sheriff Julian V. Wright, indicating additional charges might be brought in two, and possibly three, other slaying linked to the strangler.

A volunteer search effort by the local golf pro, Henry Traneau, and some super-sleuthing by Lt. C. L. McKinnon of the state law enforcement division led to the capture of Martin, who was previously arrested in 1957 on charges of assault with attempt to rape.

LICENSE PLATE

"My little girl has been sleeping right beside me, my wife has been right next to me on the other side, and my little boy next to her," Traneau said in explaining why he had launched the search effort that produced Martin's license number.

"We only live a mile from where the colored girl was kidnapped, and I didn't want anything like that to happen to my little girl," he said.

Miss Buckson's body was found by McKinnon about a half mile off State Highway 11, crumpled into a hole in the bank of a dry creek bed.

SEARCH VOLUNTEERS

"Nobody but McKinnon ever would have found it," said Bryant Phillips, a post office worker who volunteered for the search. He explained that McKinnon had noticed that a piece of green pine limb, freshly fallen from a tree, was lying beneath a heavier, and dead, piece of pine.

McKinnon scoured away the brush and uncovered the girl's leg.

Martin was taken into custody shortly afterward at the Musgrove Textile mill, where he worked in the card room. Officers found him in the restroom, smoking a cigarette.

OTTAWA (CP) — The chimes and bell of the Peace Tower clock have been silenced to allow minor repairs, the public works department has announced.

Red China Debate Postponed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council voted Friday to postpone its debate on a UN seat for Communist China.

Algeria urged the setting of a date at once for the debate but the U.S. opposed the move and won agreement that the issue can be raised by any council member later.

The China argument took 2 1/2 hours, delaying a final decision from a special council meeting called to discuss the position of South Africa in its recent trial and conviction of 30 South West Africans in charges of terrorism. That discussion will resume Monday.

Los Angeles Kings appear to be on the move again.

An early-season surprise in the National Hockey League's expansion division, the Kings ran into a mid-season slump that dropped them from the top of their division to fifth place.

Last night, they moved into a second-place tie with Minnesota North Stars by trouncing Philadelphia Flyers, the division leaders, 7-1, in Los Angeles.

At the same time, St. Louis Blues moved into fourth place, displacing Pittsburgh, by defeating the Penguins, 3-1, on Pittsburgh ice.

Ed Joly, with two goals and two assists, and Bill Flett, who scored his 21st goal and helped set up Joly and Real Lemieux, led the potent Los Angeles attack which produced four goals in the second period, two of them 33 seconds apart in the final minute.

City Clubs Continue Title Hunts

Greater Victoria area minor hockey teams are competing in playoffs in three divisions today.

In the second game of the midweek divisional championship, Nanaimo meets Victoria at Memorial Arena at 4:30 p.m. The first game ended in a 2-2 tie in the best-of-three series.

First of Year

Muriel Osborough shot the first hole-in-one of the year at the Victoria Golf Club earlier this week when her tee shot hit with a No. 5 iron, found the cup on the 145-yard second hole.

Confusion Again Lot of Vikettes

But They Are Ready and Willing

Just once, it would be nice if Wally Yeamans and his University of Victoria Vikettes could know where they stand in junior women's basketball competition.

Vikettes have been involved in more than their share of troublesome situations in Canadian, B.C. and collegiate competitions. The confusion and frustration is starting again as the team seeks another Canadian title after two years as runner-up.

Yeaman's squad was supposed to meet Mt. Pleasant Juniors, a team which features the starting five from last year's provincial finalists, Salmon Arm, in Vancouver this weekend.

Mt. Pleasant, however, couldn't afford to rent a gym and provide Vikettes with a guarantee so Yeamans, who didn't want to win the provincial championship by default, offered to hold the tournament at University of Victoria.

At first, Vancouver's coach, Gier Robinson, said that they wouldn't play in Victoria so Yeamans scheduled an exhibition game with Nanaimo High School for Friday.

Hank Casillo, vice-president of the B.C. Basketball Association, phoned Yeamans at 11 p.m., Thursday and told him that Vancouver had changed its mind and would play here Friday.

Victory in Four-Pointer Gives Tudors New Life kept Vikings under control and had a 30-13 margin in shots on goal.

Orv Coulter, with two goals, Dave Davidson and Dave Grift scored in the first 10 minutes of the game as Tudors took a 4-0 lead in the first period.

Terry Foreman scored for Vikings in the second period, one of only four shots Vikings fired at Monarch goalkeeper Ed Hastings, but Ray Grigoriev and Grift added goals in the third period for Tudors to complete the rout.

Only four penalties were called in the game, two to each club.

Good Skiing Forecast For Weekend

Prospects for good weekend skiing is excellent at Green Mountain and Forbidsen Plateau.

Green Mountain recorded a temperature of 23 degrees and had 45 inches of snow late Thursday. Forbidsen Plateau has eight feet of snow at the top T-bar and the temperature Friday reached 40 degrees.

Roads are clear in both areas but chains and snow tires are compulsory.

Oak Bay, Claremont Impress In Girls' Basketball Playoff

Favored Oak Bay, defending champion Victoria, Claremont and Esquimalt all advanced to the second round of the Lower Vancouver Island girls' high school basketball playoffs last night at Esquimalt.

Winner of the Victoria league championship, Oak Bay held St. Ann's Academy scoreless through two quarters in rolling to an easy 54-10 victory.

Victoria got by a hustling Mount View team, 34-25; Claremont poured it in on a 99-13 thumping of Belmont and Esquimalt defeated Mt. Douglas to reach the semi-finals in the winners' half of the knockout competition.

Trish Spooner, Barb Tribe and Jeannie McHattie who all play with Rawlins in the Inter-City Senior Women's League, led Claremont by scoring 28, 25 and 13 points, respectively. Elizabeth Lax added 12.

Lynette Goff, with 16 points, and Carla Van Shaik, with 15, were the high scorers for Oak Bay. Anne McKeachie scored 11 points for Victoria, Wendy Humphries got 12 for Esquimalt and Marlene Whittington scored 13 for Mt. Douglas.

Action continues today with yesterday's four losers playing the first two games.

St. Ann's and Mount View meet at 9:30 this morning and Belmont and Mt. Douglas meet at 10:45. Oak Bay and Victoria meet in one semi-final in the winners' bracket at noon and Claremont and Esquimalt play at 1:15 p.m.

The two finalists meet this evening at 8:45.

Ernie Cockayne and Nancy Craig won the open singles titles Friday in the Victoria table tennis championships at Willow Elementary School.

Cockayne defeated the junior men's champion, Peter Ngai, in the final while Mrs. Craig defeated Miss M. Capewell to take the ladies' title.

Mrs. Craig teamed with her daughter, Pamela, the consolation singles winner, to capture the doubles event from Marion Hagel and Vi Evans.

Ngai teamed with Paul Lee, the junior men's finalist, to win the men's double while Isabel Craig and George Clark took the mixed doubles.

Win Tonight Or Miss Out For Cougars

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — George Knudson of Toronto, surprised by his near-faultless putting, fired a seven-under-par 64 Friday to grab a two-stroke, second round lead in the $100,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

Knudson, 30, hit only one bunker, missed just two greens and one-putted nine holes as he methodically tore apart the 6,765-yard, par 71 Phoenix Country Club course. He had a 36-hole total of 67-64-131.

Tommy Shaw made a charge late in the day and kept the pressure on Knudson, shooting a five-under 66 to finish two strokes behind the leader.

Knudson collected six birdies on the final nine holes of Thursday's opening round and started off play Friday with three straight birdies.

After rolling in a two-foot birdie putt on the first hole, Knudson narrowly missed an ace on No. 2, a 147-yard, par-three, and settled for a birdie when he rammed in a four-foot putt.

He rolled in a two-foot putt for a bird on the third hole, sank a 25-footer for a bird on the ninth, holed out a 45-footer for a birdie-two on the 13th and added birdie putts of eight and 15 feet on the 14th and 18th holes.

"I've made an adjustment in my putting but I don't know what it is," said the 155-pound Knudson, who has been working with weights to gain strength. "You might as well enjoy it while you got it going."

His 131-stroke total was the best for 36 holes so far in the winter tour and his 64 Friday tied the one round low of

Police Use Nightsticks As Meet Boycott Fails

NEW YORK (AP) —

Police swung nightsticks outside the new Madison Square Garden Friday night as 500 pickets sought to enforce a Negro boycott of the New York Athletic Club's 10th anniversary track meet.

A group of the demonstrators were engaged in a vain try to halt a late-arriving contingent of white athletes when the police moved in. There were two arrests.

SOME COMPLETED

A number of Negro athletes had withdrawn from the games, on grounds they were being exploited by a club that bars blacks from membership. Seventeen remained on the entry list, however, as the meet began.

Several colleges with predominantly white enrollments had joined earlier in the boycott, and a team of Soviet athletes had sent word they were cancelling their scheduled appearance because of the pickets.

However, the turnout of demonstrators fell far below advance estimates, which had run as high as 5,000 to 10,000.

FANS UNDETERMINED

The demonstrators made no attempt to interfere with fans attending the game.

A record New York indoor track crowd of 17,000 had been expected.

However, the garden was only about half full when the games got under way at 7 p.m. EST with the pole vault event.

The scuffle started when the three late-arriving contingent track men from Boston University and five from a club in Providence, R.I., attempted to enter the Garden. All are white. They were not identified.

The pickets attempted to block them from entering and police moved in. Two men were taken into custody.

SOURCE OF TROUBLE

The NYAC, a cornerstone of amateur athletics in America, reportedly has all-white membership of 9,500.

Knudson, 30, hit only one bunker, missed just two greens and one-putted nine holes as he methodically tore apart the 6,765-yard, par 71 Phoenix Country Club course. He had a 36-hole total of 67-64-131.

Tommy Shaw made a charge late in the day and kept the pressure on Knudson, shooting a five-under 66 to finish two strokes behind the leader.

Knudson collected six birdies on the final nine holes of Thursday's opening round and started off play Friday with three straight birdies.

After rolling in a two-foot birdie putt on the first hole, Knudson narrowly missed an ace on No. 2, a 147-yard, par-three, and settled for a birdie when he rammed in a four-foot putt.

MYSTERY CHANGE

He rolled in a two-foot putt for a bird on the third hole, sank a 25-footer for a bird on the ninth, holed out a 45-footer for a birdie-two on the 13th and added birdie putts of eight and 15 feet on the 14th and 18th holes.

"I've made an adjustment in my putting but I don't know what it is," said the 155-pound Knudson, who has been working with weights to gain strength. "You might as well enjoy it while you got it going."

His 131-stroke total was the best for 36 holes so far in the winter tour and his 64 Friday tied the one round low of

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) —

Manor Yields Secrets

Craighower Manor is full of surprises, as architect Peter Cotton demonstrates. Fireplace above came to light when plaster wall was removed and window at right was bared with removal of shingles installed about 30 years ago. Window is in small room at rear of house which original owner Kenneth McKenna used as a study for his work, according to records he left. Manor is being restored at cost of $35,000 and should be open to public this summer. (Robin Clarke photos)

Fill-In Market Extended To British Manufacturers

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger Friday offered Britain more trade until the day when France will let it become a full member of the European Common Market. They did not say when that would be.

"Britain must do what is necessary to be in the same situation as we are, and to be with us," de Gaulle's spokesman quoted him as saying. "This means a very great economic effort. We note the beginning of an evolution, but we think that it is not yet enough."

The Kiesinger-de Gaulle statement suggested "progressive reductions of barriers to trade in industrial products." This would help Britain sell its manufactures in the big Continental market.

The proposal will be discussed by the foreign ministers of all six Common Market countries in Brussels Feb. 23.

Issued after two days of talks by more than 60 top French and West German leaders, the statement said the countries that have applied for membership could come in when they are ready. This applies particularly to Britain, it added.

Ireland, Denmark and Norway also have applied, and Sweden would like a form of membership that does not interfere with its international neutrality. Five of the six Common Market nations have been for opening negotiations immediately: West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Only France has been opposed.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson has said repeatedly he wants full membership in the Common Market or nothing.

Students Impressed

Senate Start Promising

By STEVE HUME

Relations between the University of Victoria Senate and its newly-elected student senators got off to a flowery start Wednesday night.

Student senators John Thies and Doug MacAdams attended their first Senate meeting on Valentine's Day, and presented a bouquet of flowers to senator Mrs. Marion Ricker.

This is a fourth-year geography students and MacAdams is in third-year political science.

Thies and MacAdams were elected to the Senate in an undergraduate student vote Feb. 2.

An election to choose a graduate-student senator ended in a tie. A second election will be held in March to decide the seat. Uvic Registrar Ronald Perry said Wednesday.

The Senate is responsible for such academic affairs as entrance requirements and courses at the university.

The three student senators will hold office until September. Thies and MacAdams said they were impressed with the proceedings of the four-hour meeting Wednesday.

"Committee recommendations are not just rubber-stamped, but are given full consideration," MacAdams said.

"There was no hostility, animosity or bad feelings regarding the student presence," he said.

Senator Thies agreed with MacAdams.

"COMPETENT, CONFIDENT"

"The senators are people who are interested, competent, confident and willing to discuss things," he said.

"They don't make decisions until all the ramifications are considered."

Dean Robert Wallace, senator and Dean of Administration, said the Senate was delighted to have the students sitting with them.

NO DECISION

He said the Senate considered the question of raising the academic entrance requirement to the university Wednesday.

No decision was made, but a committee is studying the question, he said.

Dean Wallace said it is possible one of the student senators would be appointed to that committee.

with its international neutrality. Five of the six Common Market nations have been for opening negotiations immediately: West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Only France has been opposed.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson has said repeatedly he wants full membership in the Common Market or nothing.

Investment Check

Report Meets U.S. Concern

TORONTO (UPI)—U.S.-owned subsidiary companies indicated Friday they would oppose imposition of most of the curbs on foreign investment recommended by the Watkins report on outside domination of the Canadian economy.

When contacted for comment, several major subsidiaries of U.S. parent companies said they would withhold formal statements pending further study of the report and of its chances of becoming government policy.

If adopted, the report's proposals would greatly increase the Canadian government's regulatory powers over foreign-owned companies operating here and would block current intrusions of U.S. law and policy into the Canadian economy.

Declining to be quoted by name, a spokesman for a major U.S. subsidiary firm said he felt there was little chance of adoption of all the Watkins report recommendations. But he added:

"If the recommendations, as described in press reports, were to become law, our company and several others would have to think very seriously about future capital investments here. Personally I would oppose the recommendations in any case because I think they would hurt our standard of living for no good reason."

Early Date 'Hoped' For Ottawa Action

OTTAWA (CP)—Privy Council President Gordon said Friday in the Commons he hopes the government can evolve a policy on foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry "at a very early date."

Opposition Leader Stanfield asked whether the government is not giving any active consideration to formulating a policy itself. Gordon tabled Thursday a report of a study group on the subject, declaring the government neither supports or rejects the recommendations at this stage.

Though Stanfield's question was directed to External Affairs Minister Martin as acting prime minister, Mr. Gordon rose to reply. Opposition members chuckled.

"There are so many people striving for that position at this time, I might as well join in," Gordon said referring to the current Liberal leadership race.

He said the government is considering the report of Professor Melville H. Watkins and will be reaching decisions on it, but has not done so yet.

With Young in Mind

Four Big Questions

Laymen, church wardens, synod delegates and presidents of youth and women's groups will converge on St. David's-by-the-Sea Church hall at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"They are seeking a course of action to bring their parish churches and worship into the 20th century," said the rector, Rev. Gordon Walker.

He harked back to the report of Saanich Deanery's annual meeting last fall.

MORE INVOLVED

"The young people are out of touch, out of the church," the report read. "There is no continuing relationship developing between young people and the church. The church lacks communication. The church should be more involved with the world and its problems."

"They're looking for answers," Mr. Walker said Friday. "Some seek to make family worship more joyful, relevant and meaningful, to eliminate irrelevant matter, making services direct, simple and to the point."

Mr. Walker believes young people are searching for real religion and a meaningful existence. But they are standing on the sidelines, anxious to be involved.

Tuesday's meeting has been authorized by Rural Dean A. E. Hendy and the Anglican clergy of Saanich.

A preliminary meeting of discussion leaders will be held Sunday evening at St. David's church hall. Mr. Walker is looking after arrangements and his church committee will act as hosts.

Questions to be discussed are:

- What is the meaning and function of worship?
- How can we make our public worship more meaningful and real?
- What is the true function of the local church?
- What changes are necessary to make this more effective, particularly with young people; and the world in which we live?

A special meeting will be held at the centre at 8 p.m. today, led by Col. Leslie Pindred, field secretary in Canada and Bermuda. He will inspect existing facilities today and will hold discussions on renovations.

ALSO CONDUCT
The colonel will also conduct at 11 a.m. Sunday in the Salvation Army Victoria Citadel, 757 Pandora.

Renovations and purchase cost will amount to approximately $25,000, Capt. Ferris said. Work should begin within three months.

The addition will take in two floors and will increase capacity to 30 men. There will be a hospital room, three staff rooms, a lounge, TV and recreational room.

In City Churches

Scouts, Brotherhood Under the Spotlight

Sunday is the beginning of Scout Week and it will be celebrated in many Victoria churches. It is also the start of Brotherhood Week, which is sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches and Jews.

One of the purposes of Brotherhood Week is to give people an opportunity to rededicate themselves as individuals to the basic ideals of respect for human life and human rights.

Others are:

- To dramatize the practical things which every individual can do to promote an understanding and realization of these ideals.

- To enlist the active support of large numbers of people in every community in year-round activities to build a true spirit of brotherhood.

- To provide an opportunity for Canadians of every race, color, creed and ethnic origin to meet one another in a friendly atmosphere and to learn more about one another's culture.

Queen Scout badges, one of the highest awards in scouting, will be presented Sunday at the parade of 5th Douglas Cubes, Scouts and Venturers in Garden City United Church.

The badges will be presented during the service to Venturers Brendon Gordon, David Campton and Bert Brazier.

CHURCH PARADE
The 70 members of the three groups will meet at 9:45 a.m. and will parade to the church for service at 10. Rev. H. R. Whitmore has chosen Keep On Climbing as his message to mark the beginning of the week. The sermon at the 11:15 a.m. service at Wilkison Road United will be Mastery — The Master.

A special service at St. Matthias' Anglican Church at 10:30 a.m. Sunday will be held for the installation of the wardens and members of the church committee. Holy Communion will be celebrated by the rector, Rev. Jack Rogers, who will preach on the subject, Saved for Service.

Wardens are Frank Allen and Warren George. Members of the church committee are David Brown, Kenneth Greenhalgh, Clifford Henze, Donald Johnston, Charles McIntosh, Frank May, Jack Muir, Leslie Salmon, Robert Thomas, Howard Thornton, William Watts, Mrs. B. Inglis, Mrs. J. Page and Miss E. Wilson.

In Victoria Truth Centre, Dr. Emma Smiley will preach on the subject All Things Respond at the 11 a.m. service Sunday. At 7:30 p.m. her subject will be Thy Will Be Done.

Healing meetings are held in the centre at 3 p.m. every Tuesday.

At the Wednesday evening meeting at 8 p.m. Diana Davis will speak on Mind and Charles Clausen on Consciousness.

The lesson sermon in First Church of Christ Scientist is on Soul. The golden text is this verse from Pauline: "Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee; and let such as love thy salvation say continually, let God be magnified."

ADMISSION CEREMONY
In Metropolitan Church Sunday morning the members of the session will be admitted and stewards will be installed.

Rev. Albert King's sermon topic will be Appreciating Others. His subject at 7 p.m. will be No Man Is An Island.

"The greatest miracle in the world is a spiritual transplant by which man receives a new heart as a gift of God," says Dr. Samuel Parsons of Centennial United Church. At 11 a.m. Sunday he will explain what this means.

ANTHEM CHOICE
Rev. H. W. Kerley's topic Sunday morning in Fairfield United Church will be Blessed Assurance. Clifford Horwood will sing How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings and the anthem will be Brother James' Air.

In the evening Dr. Kerley will preach on The Security of Salvation and Mr. Horwood will sing The Prayer Perfection.

Mass Media—The Hidden Persuaders? will be Jim Hume's topic at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday services in The Unitarian Church of Victoria. This is the second in a five-part series. Man In His Environment—Pawm or Power?

Mr. Hume was born and educated in England. During the Second World War he was a pacifist and spent four years in camps for conscientious objectors.

He came to Canada in 1948 and has worked on various newspapers, among them the Edmonton Journal. For the past two years he has been city health reporter for the Victoria Times.

Kenneth and David Johnson Island Brothers Spread Mormon Word

Three sons of a Vancouver Island family have been spreading the word as elders of the Mormon Church. They are Kenneth Johnson, 25; David, 24, and Jerry, 22.

Kenneth is a seaman on the weather ship Vancouver. He spent two years in the central U.S.

David just returned from a two-year mission in Australia. Jerry is still on a mission in California.

THEIR AMBITION
The boys were born in Nelson but spent most of their formative years in Alberni and Victoria. Their mother lives in Kamloops. They have a sister, Jeanette, in Kamloops and two brothers, Harold and Alan in Nanaimo.

As with most Mormons, it was their ambition to be chosen to go on missions.

SOLD CAR
Kenneth worked on the Stone-ton before he went, took his superannuation, sold his car and had $2,600 for the two-year stint.

"We have to have enough money to live on for the two years," he explained. "Then we can spend all our time on what we go for in the first place."

Kenneth said he was responsible for about 50 converts during the time he was in the U.S.

He would like to become a teacher. He plans to attend Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

David would like to attend the church college in Hawaii. He plans to study drama in its various forms, producing, directing and acting.

JOB SEARCH
He said he made about 13 converts in Australia.

David worked on the Coast Guard's lightship tender Estevan before he left on his mission. Now he's looking for another job to help finance his education.

Other Mormons on missions now are Lawrence Walters, 4230 Glenedenburg, in the northwest U.S.; Alan Hubbard, 2915 Harriet, in France, and Dixie Dyer, 1241 Union, in Atlanta, Georgia.

Prisoner Help Needed

First Free Week So Vital

The church could have a role in the rehabilitation of persons returning to society after serving jail sentences, George Warnock said Thursday.

The executive director of the John Howard Society was one of four speakers who addressed a capacity audience at the Y.M.C.A. auditorium. The subject, Church Action in Civic Welfare, was the sixth in a series sponsored by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Theme of the talk is The Church's Way in Victoria Today. The public is welcome and there is no fee. The talks continue at noon Thursdays in the Y. Warnock stressed the importance of the initial rehabilitation period to those finishing jail sentences.

"The need is for private homes," he said, "in which those recommended by the society will find acceptance during the first vital week of their return."

"Relocation follows immediately but it is this first vital week that counts," he reiterated. "The church can co-operate by furnishing lists of those willing to help in this way."

THREE AREAS

Gordon Wright, director of Family and Children's Service, spoke of three specific areas in which the church has great potential for service.

They are closer participation in programs dealing with premarriage and post-marriage problems; day care centres in suitably located church buildings and constructive advice in the handling of subsidized housing.

"There is a continual search for foster and adoption homes," Mr. Wright said. "These homes are highly selective. The church can give sound leadership in the selectivity."

MORE NEEDED

He said many more day care centres are needed.</

Juniors Tackle Cleanup

The intermediate section of the Junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet at 1:30 p.m. today at Douglas and Hillside for a "clearing bee" at Francis Park.

The leader section will go to Langford this morning for a workshop session.

Home Plan Launched By Elderly

Sooke's old age pensioners need a boarding home, so they formed a committee with other members of the community and are starting the initial planning.

"There are no facilities here for old people who need comfortable but inexpensive living quarters," committee member Mrs. James Walker said Thursday.

TERRIBLY HARD

"Anyone who needs assistance has to go into Victoria, and this is terribly hard on old people who have lived in Sooke for many years."

"They need to stay where they can have the companionship of the friends they have always known," she said.

A fund has been opened with profits from twice-weekly hot lunches for pensioners in the Community Hall.

A piece of property has also been offered for the proposed home, said Mrs. Walker.

The home is to be built and run by a non-profit group.

Younger Brother Jailed In Curling Club Case

A 20-year-old youth who broke into the Victoria Curling Club, 1952 Quadra, Feb. 9 was sentenced in central magistrate's court Friday to jail while his 22-year-old brother received a suspended sentence.

Robert Guy Powell, 2515 Wark, was sentenced to eight months in the Young Offender's Unit with an indeterminate term of eight months on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

William Harry Powell of the same address was placed on a $250 bond for one year. Robert Powell had a previous conviction but for William Powell it was a first offence, said Magistrate J. A. Byers.

The two youths were found by police hiding on the second floor of the curling club. A cigarette machine had been tampered with.

Douglas Sinclair, 18, of 214 Suzanne, was fined $200 and had his licence suspended for one year when he was found guilty of dangerous driving.

He was the driver of a car Dec. 6 which turned onto Saanich from Douglas in front of a truck and sidled after it went out of control, finishing on the wrong side of the road.

Verne Wallace, 20, of 1415 Harrison, was also fined $200 and had his licence suspended for one year for dangerous driving.

Police said he drove at between 25 and 30 miles an hour Jan. 11 on the Town and Country parking lot while it was covered by snow.

Douglas Beazley, HMCS Macdonald, was fined $300 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Mary Matthews, no fixed address, was fined $15 or three days in jail when she pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the woman was intoxicated on Wharf Street Thursday afternoon.

She told police she had no money, nowhere to live, no job and had been "on a drunk for a long time."

John Walker, no fixed address, was fined $15 or three days in jail for vagrancy. Walker, who had been released from jail Thursday morning, was ordered out of a downtown beer parlor Thursday night but refused to leave the premises.

Leonard Bennett and David Hamill, both of CFB Esquimalt, were each fined $35 when they pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in a public place. They drank beer in a car Jan. 19.

Charles Williams, 18, of 1606 Monterey, was fined $50 for supplying liquor to a minor and

Against Higher Freight Rates

Farmers Begin Battle

Farmers are uniting in their opposition to proposed increases in freight rates for trucks.

The B.C. Federation of Agriculture Thursday submitted a brief to the Public Utilities Commission, and Thursday night the South Saanich Farmers Institute met and voiced support for the federation.

The Metcoshin Farmers Institute will meet next week and the proposed increase will be high on its agenda.

The federation brief said the increase would not only be detrimental to farmers on Vancouver Island but would mean a loss of markets for growers throughout the province.

Fees Rising

VANCOUVER (CP) — Night-school fees will be increased 20 per cent in the coming school year, trustees agreed. They said the increase is needed to keep the program self-supporting.

"We have pointed out that any increase granted to these carriers elevates U.S. producers to a comparable economic advantage over Canadian companies," said federation manager Richard Stocks.

Applicants have requested a 5 per cent freight increase between Vancouver and Victoria, a 10 per cent increase between Vancouver and all other Vancouver Island destinations and a 10 per cent increase between all Vancouver Island points.

Garden Notes

The Venerable Hoe

By M. V. CHESNUT

Continuing our discussion on garden tools and implements, I think we might take a look today at the most ancient of all agricultural implements, the hoe. Primitive man, in his first effort to cultivate the soil, must have used something — perhaps a bent stick — in the same general shape as our modern draw hoe.

The draw hoe hasn't changed much over the years, as you can see from examining Millet's great painting, The Angelus. It is still basically a metal blade mounted at right angle to a wooden handle, used for chopping and pulling earth toward the user. Since Millet's time, the blade has been mounted on a swan-neck shank, which puts a little spring into the blade and makes the tool a bit less clumsy to use.

In our garden, the conventional draw hoe is used principally for pulling weeds of earth up around the stems of potato plants — this is known as "earthing-up" — to prevent the shallow tubers from turning green through exposure to light. We use it to mound up other plants, too, which may require a little extra support as they grow tall; corn, lilies, gladioli and dahlias especially. We use the draw hoe also for taking out shallow, flat-bottomed trenches for growing peas, gladioli, sparrow, silver-skin pickling onions and onion sets from seed. Some folks use the corner of the draw hoe for drawing out the furrows in which seeds are sown; personally I prefer to press the rake handle or a length of straight board into the freshly raked ground to make my seed furrows.

Lots of good gardeners use the draw hoe for weeding, but I can't see it in this role. It requires a rather strenuous chopping motion to get out the weeds, and it is difficult to do close and accurate work around the stems of valued plants.

For this work, I very much prefer the Dutch hoe, sometimes called a scuffle hoe, in which a small sharp blade faces forward, supported in a metal stirrup. With this one, the blade is scuffed back and forth a fraction of an inch below the soil surface, slicing off the weeds and dragging them to the surface to die in the sun. It is invaluable, too, for stirring and loosening the soil between the plants in our flower and vegetable plots. I keep the blade really sharp by drawing it frequently with a file or a hone.

In working between row crops, the Dutch hoe has a further advantage in that you work backward down the row and never need step on the weeded part. In chopping weeds with the draw hoe, it is necessary to move forward, walking all over your work, which must be raked afterward to remove the footprints.

Dutch hoes come in quite a variety of widths. In our case, where we don't have very much garden space devoted to row crops, I prefer a small model. For I find I can do more accurate work between irregularly-spaced perennials and bedding plants with a narrow-bladed scuffle hoe. Besides, it is easier to tempt other members of the family into undertaking the monotony of weeding with a small, light, easy-to-handle hoe.

Just as the plowshare-toothed rake is king among scarifying implements for the lawn, the aristocrat among hoeing tools is the Swoe, forged by the Wilkinson Sword Company of England. Perfectly balanced and beautifully made, the Swoe might be described as a hybrid between a hoe and a sword, and while this weirdly-shaped implement costs the earth — around $14 — it does more jobs than any conventional hoe, and does them twice as well and in half the time.

ERMA BOMBECK-and the Lonely Hearts

Togetherness Apartness

Loneliness. Young mothers look forward to it, thinking it will never come. Middle-aged women fear it, thinking it will. Older women deplore it, knowing it has.

An eminent scientist said recently North American women are the "loneliest, hardest-working and perhaps the most isolated who ever existed."

Fifty years ago, a house was filled with women. Today, everyone experiences independence. I didn't say enjoys. Technical devices wash and dry the clothes, cook the food electronically, blend, steam, vacuum and wax, leaving the young mother with time for...

The financial independence that often comes with the "middle years" has produced a breed of women who employ a cleaning lady to come clean her house while she goes out to volunteer in the day nursery where the cleaning lady leaves her children.

In the aged, loneliness is perhaps the most visible. The woman at the supermarket handing the cashier a single chop, a lone tomato, a quarter-pound of butter and, God help her, a jigsaw puzzle which promises 2,000 challenging pieces.

The future is even more challenging. What will people do with their time when the average life span is 100 years? What will happen to the married couple whose children will grow up and leave home before their parents' lives are even half completed? How will women begin to fill the void?

Most of my kin were farm people. They lived by the Bible and from the soil. They had big kitchens and so many kids they couldn't remember the middle names of them.

One had 14 children. She never saw a movie, a hairdresser, a TV set, a car wash or anything automatic. (In her later years the kids chipped in and bought her a gas stove which she considered unsafe and put on the back porch.)

As her children married, the family increased, rather than decreased. All lived nearby and considered their home the hub about which they revolved. On a Sunday, that barnyard looked like the freeway at 5 o'clock.

The closeness of this family and their concern for one another was something to see. I am not saying she was never lonely. I am saying she never had to work a jigsaw puzzle alone.

The current trend of women is, at the first signs of loneliness, to hop on the treadmill of busy-work to take them outside the home. They become a part of a movement to join, collect, help, play, move, hustle, fly, dash, phone, see, call, serve, elect, oppose or march.

They rationalize that children who can make their own sandwiches and drive their own cars don't need them.

What could they possibly give to mother, retired in a plush condominium in Florida? To involve oneself in a cause is, of course, worthwhile. To learn conversational Mau Mau is broadening, but does it stamp out loneliness?

Family life today is sacrificed in the name of boredom, better job opportunities, warmer climate, independence or cold detachment. We have arrived at that point where we never know how much we miss one another until we all show up for a funeral.

The future will have to bring about some drastic reshuffling of values or we will have volunteers, students, and bridge players failing over one another. Maybe it will even restore the close-knit family that loves and cares for one another during a lifetime.

The Tra-la-la World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Saying It with Music

NEW YORK (NANA) — "If I were filming Fanny today," said director Josh Logan, who filmed it in 1935 with Charles Boyer, Maurice Chevalier and Leslie Caron, "I would have to put all the songs back in." Today it's hard to miss with a movie musical. Josh, whose Camelot is singing a merry tune at the box office, is now preparing Paint Your Wagon for a June start in the Cascade mountains in Oregon. It's a musical of course.

"After the first wave of films with music," Josh continued in his attractive suite on the Paramount lot, "the Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy hits, Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, the productions of Busby Berkeley and Leroy Prinz, musicals were death at the box office. They wouldn't take them at all in Europe. Even Gigi was a flop in France." I remember Billy Wilder explaining why he was merely using the music of Irma La Douce as background in his film version. "They don't like American musicals abroad." Logan had used the songs from Fanny for the background music. The title song, recorded by Eddie Fisher, was a big hit.

With music in the dog house even singers as famous as Frank Sinatra decided to hide their talent on the screen. Dana Andrews once told me that he came to Hollywood originally as a singer, but hearing of the unpopularity of screen vocalists, he kept his voice a secret. Now it's music, music everywhere.

The two male stars of Paint Your Wagon, Lee Marvin and Clint Eastwood will sing A Few Dollars More, which made him many dollars. And Lee will sing a la Rex Harrison in My Fair Lady. Anyone who cannot belt an operatic aria is singing like Rex Harrison today, even Cary Grant in the lullaby to his baby daughter.

Paint Your Wagon is going one step further in the present song and dance cycle on the screen. It is the first musical to be made entirely on location. "We're building a town in a valley of the Cascade mountains, and even the recordings of the songs with hundreds of male voices in the chorus will be made there."

The present successful singing cycle, Logan explained, "was started by the success of West Side Story in Europe. Before that, the songs were always removed from the European versions. Even from The King and I. If that could be released again today with the songs left in, it would make $20,000,000." This is a good tip to 20th Century-Fox, which made the movie with Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr.

England is now making big musicals. Paramount spent more than $10,000,000 on its musical film version of Half A Sixpence, starring Tommy Steele. Coming up, the musical film of Oliver and Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, all costing more than $10,000,000. In the works in Hollywood or completed, Star! starring Julie Andrews, who has signed for two more musicals with Blake Edwards directing; Finian's Rainbow at Warners with Deborah Kerr and Fred Astaire — wasn't he marvelous on his TV special? — and British singer Petula Clark; Sweet Charity starring Shirley Maechling; Funny Girl, with Barbra Streisand, from Columbia. To be followed by Barbra's mammoth Hello Dolly. And on and on far into the musical night. If you have an old musical tucked away in a drawer, this is the time to bring it out.

We Love Humbug

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Once upon a time we used to think that people loved the truth and would go to the ends of their energies to discover it. But truth, as some have said, is not only stranger than fiction — it is also more difficult to face, to embrace, or to endure.

The fabled P. T. Barnum, that self-styled "Prince of Humbug," made a great discovery. Contrary to popular belief, his life story does not reveal the difficulties of deceiving the public, but rather, how much the public enjoys being deceived. And most especially if they could see how it was being done!

His major justification provides a lesson in what people are made of: such "clap-trap," he assures us, was possible because it was "mixed up with the great realities which I provide." Apparently, half-truths pass for more than they are worth, and succeed in looking genuine and whole because they satisfy a deeply-felt human need; fantasy gliding reality.

When "Jumbo," the African elephant, was killed in a train accident, Barnum let out a story describing how Jumbo died, sacrificing himself to save a baby elephant. Then, he imported "Allice," who he promptly billed as "Jumbo's widow," posing her next to the stuffed body of her "deceased husband."

In his autobiography, Barnum recounted such exploits with simple and disarming candor, and spared his readers none of the minute details of his many sensational hoaxes.

Human nature, it often seems, requires and thrives on moods of extravagant expectation. Many people are thus not deceived by the deceiver; they rather take pleasure in being deceived.

Reality is enjoyed more when it is less — much less than real. Thus we smile away the enormous claims of many advertisers. We know that they are not really true, but we enjoy what we know is not truly real.

Or we mouth momentous ideals to our children but feel no disappointment when they fall far short, because we really didn't believe ideally, to begin with.

Again, we allow politicians to lead us on wild and woolly chases down lanes that end nowhere, because we actually seem to enjoy watching adroit deceptions. The game is played by all who care to join: a little fiction goes farther than a lot of truth.

It need hardly be added that education does not always educate, nor does history teach. We keep repeating old errors because we seem to enjoy them better than new truths.

We are cultivated only when we permit ourselves to become teachable. We are cultivated only when we are cultivated by the easy enjoyments of deceptive illusions.

We are civilized only when we power our lives sufficiently so that we can withstand the shocks of truth. We become mentally strong when we allow ourselves to become emotionally tough.

High School Graduates

Vocational Aid Requested For Evenings

The school trustees of three Greater Victoria area school boards have requested the education department to open school doors for evening training in vocational pursuits for high school graduates.

"We have no legal obligation towards these young people," said Peter Bunn, chairman of District 61 school board, "but we feel we have a moral obligation."

Mr. Bunn recently took the Canada Manpower Centre retraining program to task because of the fact young people must be three years in the labor force before they are able to qualify for retraining benefits. At that time he said the schools had all the equipment necessary for vocational training, but lacked the instructors.

Friday morning Mr. Bunn, John Bartanus (Dist. 62) and Mrs. Ruby May Parrott (Dist. 63) presented a three-page proposal to Dr. G. N. Perry, deputy minister of education, suggesting the school districts would supply the building and equipment, if the department would supply instructors to enable graduates to further their vocational training.

Mr. Bunn said Dr. Perry accepted the proposal in principle, and will set up the framework for a study by his department and school boards.

"If the department of education considers this proposal to be feasible," the presentation read, "it is recommended that an examination be taken by the vocational division to determine the suitability and the availability of space and equipment for use in extending the post-secondary vocational program."

"It would be understood that the costs of the operations of the public schools for provincial vocational schools would be met by the department. On the other hand our boards would like to make it very clear that their interest is not to make a profit out of the facilities but rather to get the programs established for the young people of the area."

Workshops On Music Successful

Three final workshops on the technique of teaching music in schools will be presented by the Trustees of School District 62.

Workshops will be held Wednesday at Beaver Lake elementary and again February 28 at Brentwood elementary on March 6 and 13 and Royal Oak elementary on March 21 and 22.

Classes will run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. with each session costing $1.

A spokesman for the Saanich School Board said the courses so far have been well received with parents and teachers expressing enthusiasm about the new "whole to part" technique of teaching.

B.C. of Future Topic of Talk

The Impact of Technology on the British Columbia Environment by the Year 2000 will be subject of talk by Dr. Derrick Sewell at 8:15 p.m. Monday to University Extension Association. He will speak in room 168 of the University of Victoria's Elliot Building.

Merger Official By Cabinet Stamp

The View Royal panhandle is now officially part of Esquimalt.

A cabinet order in council Friday amalgamated the two areas, a move that was endorsed by panhandle ratepayers two weeks ago.

Residents of the 60-acre area petitioned for the amalgamation in an effort to get sewers installed.

Noisy Trucks Anger Sleepless Esquimalt

With their previously peaceful nights shattered by the noise of diesel truck engines, Esquimalt residents are contemplating action under the municipal anti-noise bylaw.

Trucks load and unload throughout the night in a freight company yard on Viewfield Road, say homeowners on Old Esquimalt Road, disturbing their sleep.

The anti-noise bylaw adopted by council Nov. 21, 1966, prohibits the loading or unloading of any vehicle in such a manner as to "disturb the quiet, peace, rest, enjoyment, comfort or convenience of the neighborhood."

HOUSE SHAKES

"I'm on the point of laying a charge under the bylaw," said Mrs. Dolores Jansen, Friday.

"I don't mind the noise in the daytime, but it's impossible through the night. You can't get to sleep yourself, and you can't get kids to sleep."

Her neighbor, Mrs. Doreen Montgomery, said she will back up Mrs. Jansen in any action she might take.

"Council seems to think we should put up with the noise because of the taxes from industry, but we pay taxes too."

'COUNCIL TO BLAME'

Another neighbor, Mrs. Cecelia Murphy, said she doesn't blame the company much. "After all you can't operate a trucking business without making a noise."

The area concerned is on the boundary between Esquimalt and Victoria, and complaints have also been received by the city engineer about the noise through the night.

JOBS CREATED

Complaints are discussed by an Esquimalt council committee, Tuesday evening, and Coun. William Bell suggested at that time that residents would have to put up with the noise so that light industry would not leave the area.

He pointed out that the industry creates jobs for young people in the area.

Grey Day Expected

Victoria's sunny skies will be absent today, the weatherman says, chased away by Pacific disturbances expected to veer north from Oregon.

Clouds are expected to spread over Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland today and move into the interior on Sunday.

Students

Counsel For Couples

A pre-marriage guidance course now is available to University of Victoria students through the Student Health Services.

The course, which spans six weeks, is sponsored by the Y-M-Y-C-A and by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches. Six lectures, presented by professionals in each field, will deal with six aspects of marriage: physical, psychological, spiritual, financial, domestic, and legal.

Dr. J. E. Peterson, director of the Student Health Centre, recommended this course after receiving many inquiries about preparation for marriage.

A couple may begin the course at any time and attend six consecutive lectures. The fee is $6.00 per couple.

Registration forms are available at the Student Health Centre.

Community Program Talk Topic

W. C. Gelling, Port Simpson community development officer, will be guest speaker at the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society's monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Douglas Building cafeteria.

Mr. Gelling will give an illustrated talk on progress being made in the community development program, a joint project by federal and provincial governments covering interests of some 900 B.C. Indians.

Here's What We Read

They Line Up for Spooks

By NANCY BROWN

Lurking behind the staid facade Victorians present to visitors is the more sinister undercurrent of the occult.

Books about mysticism, reincarnation and spiritualism are among the most difficult to obtain in Victoria Public Library.

Hypnotism and graphology are other subjects which are usually on the reserved list, despite an extensive — and growing collection.

Librarian Mary Edwards said Friday that Victorians seem to have a great interest in anything to do with the occult.

"It's almost impossible for our readers to borrow books on Yoga, although we have a very large collection," she said.

"We have some 300 reserves put on books every week, and many of them are in this mystic category."

Victorians, she said are a very literate lot. "They're very up to date on all the new books, both fiction and non-fiction, and they take out a high proportion of non-fiction."

Non-fiction readers are usually very definite in their wants. They don't meander vaguely around the shelves; they want books under definite classifications.

"I think the entire population likes mystery stories. We'll only allow two on each card."

Miss Edwards said a University of California librarian visited the library recently.

"She was astounded at the type of requests and suggestions we have here. We have to be on our toes to keep up with new selections."

"Some days its just like a factory in here, with borrowers in line all the time."

"One day last month we booked out 3,300 books in one day."

"It's not only the retired people who use the library," she explained.

One boy, 12-year-old Roger Roberts, 151 Haliburton takes along his Siamese cat Tay to help with his book selections.

"From little ones who can just print their names, we run the entire gamut of University and public school students, housewives and workmen, career women and businessmen, up to the senior citizens."

Noteworthy new books are often reserved even before they're published, according to Miss Edwards.

Book reviewers in the city hold a good deal of influence. "The requests flood in after a favorable review."

Newspaper features also bring book demands. "We were rushed off our feet after a Colonist feature about graphology. One couple from California came in after picking up the paper when they were visiting and wanted to know what books were available."

Current events are reflected in book requests.

"Last year when so much was being written about LSD and other drugs, we were asked for books about them."

"There's an incredible interest, too, in books about Vancouver Island. It may be because so many people are coming here to settle."

"There aren't too many books on the subject, but fortunately what we have are very good."

"I do wish someone would write a good comprehensive story of Victoria," reflected Miss Edwards.

"It's got a delightful, sometimes bawdy history, and a good writer could answer so many requests. Do you know I can't trace a real history of the city that compares with George Nicholson's story of the West Coast?"

Victorian's maritime interests are also mirrored in book requests.

"People want to know about pleasure cruising and charting, as well as marine and diesel engineering."

U.S. Education Expert's TV Recipe:

More Sex, Less Brutality

By A. H. MURPHY

Brutality, murder and death on television is "straight pornography" in the opinion of Dr. L. A. Kirkendall, professor of family life at Oregon State University.

"I, for one, would like to see more good, loving sex taken to its place. It seems to me that our concepts are all mixed up," said the visiting lecturer who has been described as the foremost United States authority on sex education.

Speaking to a University of Victoria audience on The New Morality, Dr. Kirkendall said that the concepts of morality had become separated from the dynamics of present day living.

There was confusion in the realm of sex as evidenced by the struggle within the Roman Catholic Church to think through the matter of contraception.

As arbiter of behavior in sex the church had tied sex tightly to procreation. Outside procreation it was unnatural, undesirable and wrong.

But the character of authority itself was changing. No longer was the church relied upon as the basis for knowing right and wrong. Its place had been taken by scientific inquiry, examination and re-examination and empirical research.

"We now wanted to be shown and determine answers for ourselves," he said.

Dr. Kirkendall said also that the line between life and death was becoming blurred. Doctors were beginning to ask themselves if they had the right to keep an organism functioning after its humanity and personality was gone and when maintenance of life was draining the emotional and financial resources of those involved.

Dr. Kirkendall criticized the use of labels.

"Modern warfare makes extensive use of labels. We put a label on the enemy and then we can kill him without compunction because he is communist or imperialist. It would be a different thing, I think, if we considered that we were not killing labelled people but fathers, husbands, brothers and lovers."

"Calling a man a homosexual, an atheist or a hippy degrades him in our eyes and we can kill him without remorse," said Dr. Kirkendall.

Defining what the new morality should be, the speaker said:

"Whenever a decision or choice is to be made concerning behavior, the moral decision will be one which works toward the creation of trust, confidence and integrity in relationships. It should increase the capacity of individuals to co-operate and enhance the sense of self-respect in the individual."

Fitting sexuality into this pattern, Dr. Kirkendall said that he did not think there was too little sexual freedom at the present time.

RIN Officer Proposes

Socialist Revolution for Quebec

By GAIL SOOTT

MONTREAL (CP) — A separatist Quebec based on a socialist revolution is the credo of Andre Ferretti.

Vice-president of Quebec's largest separatist party, le Rassemblement pour l'indépendance nationale, he says:

"Separation without socialism will scarcely change anything. Dark eyes flashing, the RIN vice-president listed some of the factors which she said make it impossible at present for the 'ordinary' Quebecer to change his lot:

"For real liberty the people of Quebec must be liberated economically. We must repatriate Quebec resources, now controlled by a foreign bourgeoisie made up of Americans and English-Canadians."

Mrs. Ferretti, 32, was elected to her position at the RIN annual meeting in October, despite strong opposition from party leader Pierre Bourgault, himself re-elected president.

She says: "We must stop investment in Ontario and the U.S. of money made from the sale of Quebec natural products. Quebec needs to be industrialized and all profits reinvested in the province and the power should be transferred from the bourgeois class, which is largely foreign, to the working class."

After her barrage of recommendations for a new Quebec,

Mrs. Ferretti leaned back in her chair in her nine-room suburban Outremont home and outlined a hypothetical plan for the gradual socialization of the province.

"It would be a very slow process," she said. "It would probably take about 10 years."

"First, public institutions such as banks and hospitals would be socialized, followed by at least a partial control of industries. All money made in Quebec would have to be reinvested here."

And if the "foreign" industrialists and financiers established in Quebec were not willing to co-operate with the new system?

She hoped there would be no need for violence but "I am not against it."

Asked if becoming a separatist had anything to do with cultural and linguistic rights, Mrs. Ferretti replied:

"No. I do not speak English and have never found it necessary to do so."

A Montrealese, she attended the University of Montreal and it was there that what she termed her "strong nationalist feelings" became separatist.

"When the first bombs were exploded in 1963 by members of the Front de Liberation Quebecois, I decided that if other young people were risking their lives and futures for Quebec, I must do something too."

"The same day I joined the RIN."

Asked to comment on Rene Levesque, who recently resigned from the Quebec Liberal party to start his own party for Quebec sovereignty, she said:

"Mr. Levesque is not a revolutionary but a man who knows and interprets the thoughts of the people. He knows Quebecers are tired of being in Confederation and that's why his movement is so popular."

"A group of workers in September told me that two weeks ago they were not separatist, but that if Rene Levesque told them to take up arms they would do so."

It was possible that RIN and Mr. Levesque's party would eventually join forces, Mrs. Ferretti said.

Of Premier Daniel Johnson, she says: "He takes a step forward and a step backward, but he will not go very far either way because he is a member of that small group of French-Canadian bourgeoisies."

Many RIN organizers are women, she said, and "I am one of the most militant workers in the party."

She has been seen in several RIN demonstrations. As well as spending several hours a day on party activities,

Mrs. Ferretti looks after her own children, does most of her housework, and all her own cooking.

Her husband, who owns a book store, is Italian.

To combine the job of being a good wife with her busy political life, Mrs. Ferretti rises at 6:45 a.m. to do such household chores as ironing. She seldom goes to bed before 1:30 a.m.

Arrest ImprobableGaglardi's Charge Investigated

The attorney-general's department is investigating a charge by Highway Minister Gaglardi that an unnamed man was offered $25,000 to lie about him and force his resignation.

Attorney-General Bonner, in an interview outside the Legislature Friday, rejected demands by opposition MLAs that the "man concerned" be arrested and charged.

SERIOUS OFFENCE

Alex Macdonald said the man who, according to Mr. Gaglardi, was offered the sum of money to perjure himself in a legal action was in contempt of court, "A most serious criminal offence."

Mr. Bonner rejected this suggestion, saying it applied generally it would "leave every victim of robbery open to arrest."

REASON WHY

He said, in reply to questions, that he didn't know the identity of the man who offered the bribe, adding, "that is why we are investigating."

A lawyer from the attorney-general's department was in Vancouver Friday to discuss the issue with Chief Justice John Wilson of the B.C. Supreme Court.

Since the matter touched upon a case already before the court, Mr. Bonner said, his department had two aims. First, it wanted to learn the wishes of the court, he said, and secondly to ascertain the facts in connection with Mr. Gaglardi's allegations.

The attorney-general was asked whether he anticipated any arrests being made. He replied: "I'm not sure whether the people in question even reside in Canada."

Mr. Bonner said he "didn't believe" they are Canadians but refused to speculate what nationality might be involved.

He was asked what possible interest non-Canadians might have in bringing down the Social Credit government, as Mr. Gaglardi claimed in his speech Thursday night. The attorney-general replied: "I haven't got a clue."

INSPECTOR NAMED

Mr. Bonner said departmental inspector Archie Plummer would carry out the investigation for the government.

Mr. Bonner was asked whether he accepted Mr. Gaglardi's position that he was the victim of an organized attack.

"I can't imagine that the whole attack was casual," he replied. "It is too consistent and extended over too long a period of time."

FormosaJet Crash Kills 47, 16 Survive

TAIPEI, Formosa — Sixteen of 63 persons aboard a civilian jet transport were reported to have been killed Friday night when the Boeing 727 crashed at Taipei in foul weather.

One of the 63 was reported to be a Canadian, but it was not known whether he was killed or injured.

The Civil Air Transport plane was attempting an emergency landing when it crashed into a house, broke in two and caught fire.

Ownership of the plane was 80 per cent Chinese and 40 per cent American.

The plane had been on a flight from Hong Kong.

Two Chinese were killed on the ground, one when the plane levelled his home and the other as he was walking on a highway.

The airline said the pilot was trying to make an emergency landing in bad weather when the plane crashed. It said there were 52 passengers and 11 crew aboard.

An uninjured Chinese passenger told reporters he noticed flames in the rear of the plane just before the crash.

He said: "The plane split in two near the midsection where I was sitting. I jumped and started running. When I got about 100 yards away I heard an explosion, turned around and saw the plane on fire."

'Grudge' Blaze Kills 12 in Tavern

MOBERLY, Mo. (UPI)—Firemen said an ex-convict walked into a tavern from which he had been barred, doused the walls with gasoline and set off an explosion that killed 12 persons Friday.

Police held a man identified as William Collins, 30, an ex-convict, who they said surrendered voluntarily following the holocaust.

"It was a grudge," said Fire Chief Leroy Willis, 47. "It's a pity so many people have to die over a grudge. This guy Collins had been barred from the tavern."

Willis said one unidentified woman who escaped the inferno told him the suspect "walked into the tavern armed with a hard can full of gasoline."

"She thought it was dirty water," Willis said. "But she said he walked into the centre of the room, threw the gasoline on the walls, lit a match and threw it. There was instant fire all over the place."

Did you say you needed a prescription filled in a hurry?

We've got graduate pharmacists in over 60 stores waiting for your phone call right this minute. And every one of them is backed up by the the largest stock of pharmaceuticals in the province.

That's what we call a drug store. Someone near who's got what you want when you want it. Someone who cares whether Tommy gets his cough medicine. Or grandpa gets his pills. On time.

If you can't drop in to a Cunninghams store, we'll be glad to send it out with our free delivery service. There's a girl behind the wheel of every car. And boy, does she know what "send it over fast" means.

You'll find us everywhere.

At Cunninghams we care.

These Cunninghams Drug Stores' pharmacist-managers are ready to fill your family prescription needs

THINK YOU HAVE A TERRIBLE NIGHT

Hardly closed an eye! That tramp-tramping upstairs in the bedroom...

He sooner he sees his dentist about that tooth the better...

OH BOY! WE'RE ON OUR WAY TO THE CHIEF'S ANNIVERSARY ORGY! WHOOPEE!

I CAN HARDLY WAIT! ME TOO!

IT'S THE SOCIAL EVENT OF THE SEASON!

AT LAST WE CAN PAY HONOR TO OUR BELOVED CHIEF!

BLESS HIS DEAR, SWEET HEART!

HONEST MR. EDWARDS' NEVER TOLD A LIE. BUT IN MY LIFE... MAYBE I'VE BOUGHT A CHANCE NOW AND THEN - BUT...

PROOF IS IN BUSINESS TO FIGHT RACKETEERING, NOMAD! ANY RUMOR THAT OUR OWN EMPLOYEES GAWLED OUT THAT YOU'RE TAKING THEM!

I'M TOLD THAT HUNDREDS OF NUMBERS BETS ARE BEING PLACED IN THIS PLANT EVERY DAY - NO BETTER HOT FIND OUT THAT YOU'RE TAKING THEM!

THAT'S ALL GET BACK TO YOUR TRUCK!

COME ON, MIKE! I DON'T WANT TO GET A FRIEND IN DUTCH, STEVE! FORGET IT!

When You Hear This Gun, Duck!

North Cowichan will not follow lead of Central Saanich in banning special duck gun, if George Whittaker has his way. George is both farmer and municipal councillor, who has ordered one of loud propane guns to stop annual duck damage. But Central Saanich has objected to special device. Bill Taylor, left, and son Joe operate the gun, which scares birds. (Agnes Flett)

Pioneer Project Could Begin Soon

By KLAUS MUENTER

NORTH COWICHAN—A start could be made on the Pioneer Park recreation area late this year or early next, North Cowichan Reeve Don Morton has indicated.

Reeve Morton, discussing the $5,000 A. B. Sanderson Pioneer Park report, said a start could be made "on a major project" at the end of this year.

He added however that implementation of the entire report could take 10 years and cost $1,000,000.

Both North Cowichan and Duncan recreation commissions and civic heads have given the report their full support.

They have urged that thorough preparation be made before a money bylaw is put to the voters.

The recreation commissions decided Thursday to combine the first three stages of the report, at a cost of more than $300,000.

The first three phases would give this area a covered swimming pool, a community centre complex, fields for junior and senior soccer, a fieldhouse, new tennis courts and the relocation of existing little league diamonds and stands.

Reeve Morton cautioned "We must remember that debentures are extremely hard to sell."

"The condition of the present market might mean that, even if people would vote for it, we might have no way of borrowing that much money."

"I would suggest we get on with it to the bylaw stage while there is so much enthusiasm," Duncan Mayor Jim Quail commented. "It is a very comprehensive report."

"We should get started with plans before the costs increase. We have to prepare a bylaw but I can't see it being put to the voters before autumn."

"I have a lot of faith in this report."

The mayor indicated city ratepayers will approve it.

"During campaigning last year I met many people who said they would go for recreation."

Have Better Results with "Fertil" Pots

Extensive tests have proven the advantages of using Fertil Pots. The Fertil Pot has a vegetable fiber added which overcomes excessive crumbling, and no chemical binder is used. The Fertil Pot is therefore PEAT AND VEGETABLE FIBER with added fertilizer: nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. Once in the ground the roots are fed and the plant develops rapidly while the pot disintegrates and forms humus in the soil. The Fertil Pots are sterilized during manufacture to prevent parasites from breeding in the culture environment.

Inquiry in Doubt

Opposition Split

House Hears More Highway Charges

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

The NDP and Liberals in the legislature Friday both fired more big guns at Highway Minister Gagliardi but the opposition parties couldn't agree between themselves whether the whole matter should be put to a judicial inquiry.

The house was thrown into an uproar as the first opposition speaker, Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay), called for a judicial inquiry into "this whole dirty business" and said it was the only way the air can be cleared from "this unhealthy stench of suspicion arising from innuendo." Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East), who spoke next, said he wasn't against holding a judicial inquiry but he felt one wasn't necessary because the public had already been made aware of many of the facts surrounding controversial land developments along major B.C. Interior highways.

Then Mr. Macdonald went on to make additional disclosures regarding the involvement of Mr. Gagliardi's two sons in land developments along the new Yellowhead route, Trans Canada highway, and highway 16 east.

Bonner

● The Gagliardi sons, Bob, 27, and Bill, 24, were connected by Mr. Macdonald with companies holding land at Cache Creek, Blue River and McBride.

● Mr. Macdonald said provincial assessment notices on two of the lots at Blue River were actually sent to Mr. Gagliardi's Kamloops home in the name of Northland Investments Ltd., a company which is also connected with Bill and Bob Gagliardi at a Vancouver address.

● The NDP member also charged that companies involved in ownership of the property in question, as well as property at the Trans-Canada-Merritt highway junction near Kamloops, were in breach of the Companies Act because they did not file the names of their real owners with the companies office in Victoria.

● Mr. Macdonald alleged that a sign posted at Blue River by Northland was "obviously" painted by the Kamloops highways department sign shop foreman, Frank Methot, the same man who "moonlighted" to paint a similar sign advertising property for sale near Kamloops.

● Mr. Macdonald said the whole case raised a question of political morality: "Is it

Old Case

Suit Requires Testimony Of Minister

VANCOUVER (CP)—The ghost of a legislative inquiry into the provincial highways department came back to haunt embattled Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi Friday.

Mr. Gagliardi was served with a subpoena ordering him to appear in Vancouver county court next week as a witness in a trial arising from the same road contract incident that triggered an investigation of his department in 1963.

The subpoena was issued by Dick Holzworth, a Helena, Mont., contractor, who was president of Union Contractors Ltd. when the case first arose five years ago.

Mr. Holzworth is suing Arthur Burton Lymburner, a former director of L and M Logging Co. for unspecified damages. Mr. Lymburner's company held a contract for work on the Southern Trans-Provincial Highway several years ago that was later taken over by Union Contractors in a cash-for-shares transaction.

GAGLIARDI CLEARED
Mr. Holzworth triggered the investigation of Mr. Gagliardi's department with allegations of graft. Mr. Gagliardi was subsequently exonerated.

In a speech to the legislature Thursday night, the member for Kamloops said he had learned that one man had been offered a $25,000 bribe to testify against him in a civil case in Vancouver, apparently the Holzworth action.

He declined to identify the man he says was offered a bribe, but said the matter has been referred to the attorney general's department.

It was the latest round in a series of developments that started two weeks ago when Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East) shocked the legislature by inferring there had been some land deals involving Mr. Gagliardi's department and his two sons, Bill and Bob, in the Kamloops area.

SWORN STATEMENT

Meanwhile, at Kamloops, The Sentinel Friday published an affidavit sworn by a Blue River businessman, who once held rights to purchase a piece of property along the present route of the Yellowhead, which is now under construction.

James Lamont said in the affidavit he was first approached by Bob and Bill Gagliardi in the fall of 1964. He said they offered to buy his option on the land for $750 and had escalated their offer to $2,000 by February the following year.

Mr. Lamont said he was not at any time aware that the property would be on the Yellowhead route. He said he eventually lost his option and the land later went to Northland Investments Ltd.

Mr. Gagliardi also came under attack by a group of his Kamloops constituents Friday. A group of nine Kamloops residents started circulating 36 petitions calling for his resignation.

JURISDICTION SWITCH DEFIED OFFICERS JOIN FERRY TIEUP

Despite the government's emergency legislation Friday night to end the B.C. Ferry strike, the walkout still stands.

The ferry workers voiced "no thought of getting back on the job," and were joined in their action by 200 mates, engineers, masters and pilots aboard the ferries, who voted to strike at midnight.

The officers are members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

"This new legislation changes nothing as far as I can make out," said Norman Thornber, business agent for the 800-member marine branch of the B.C. Government Employees Association which represents the unlicensed deck and dock workers.

Royal Assent Given

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was called to the legislature shortly before 10 p.m. Friday to give royal assent to a bill bringing the ferry system into the highways department and the government immediately appealed to striking crews to return to work by Sunday morning.

The move, which was condemned by the NDP in the house as "strike breaking" and "iron-heel bureaucracy," is intended to strengthen the hand of the government in bargaining with 800 striking unlicensed ferry workers.

The men went out on strike at 5 a.m. Friday, halting all sailings on two major routes linking Vancouver Island with the mainland as well as several minor routes.

The government action was termed "largely psychological" by government spokesmen. It brought the ferries under direct control of Highways Minister Gagliardi and removed all argument about whether crew members had the right to strike — a right which civil servants in the government do not enjoy.

There was no immediate indication that the government would force the men to return to work.

Mr. Gagliardi issued an appeal for all ferry workers to report for work in time for the first sailings Sunday morning. He promised "fair treatment" for all and told reporters outside the house the crews were assured that "time and time we will listen to you and treat you

Air Armada Lone Ferry Pack 'Em In

Airlines and one lone ferry worked hard on the Island Friday, handling extra traffic caused by the B.C. Ferries strike. Ferry traffic from Swartz Bay and Nanaimo to the B.C. mainland was almost halted, except for the CPR ferry Princess Vancouver.

Plan's in Nanaimo were crowded with customers to closing time Friday as people cashed cheques to handle the expense of overnight lodgings forced on them by the ferries shutdown.

"There's standing room only," said a near-exhausted CPR ferry official Friday after having turned away more than a hundred cars.

The car deck had been booked solidly for the 10 p.m. sailing by 3 o'clock that afternoon.

By late Friday night, the 10 p.m. Saturday sailing was completely booked.

The ferry makes three sailings from Nanaimo each day to downtown Vancouver.

Planes Keep Busy

A chartered Nanaimo airline which normally makes five flights a day to Vancouver stepped up its schedule to 17 flights to handle extra traffic.

Air Canada scheduled 11 extra Viscount flights each way between Victoria and Vancouver, during the day on Friday, and cleaned up the stand-by passengers Friday evening by adding two more extra flights, carrying more than 1,000 passengers each way during the day.

Today and Sunday, Air Canada will play it by ear, but have arranged to have a similar pattern available, with 11 extra flights during the day and two in the evening, making a total of 19 each way with Viscount aircraft.

If the traffic warrants it, an Air Canada official said, there may be a DC-9 flight scheduled for the afternoon, when traffic is heaviest.

Extra Ground Staff

On Friday afternoon, some of the stand-by passengers chartered B.C. Airlines, which made two flights in its nine-passenger aircraft.

Air Canada added extra reservations staff to keep up with the heavy flow of inquiries, and will keep the staff beamed up as long as the emergency exists.

The Mayne Island Queen, plying from Swartz Bay to the major Gulf Island ports, and the Salt Spring Island ferry, from Swartz Bay to Fulford Harbor, were running Friday, but a ferry official was not able to say whether they would continue to ply on schedule.

Ferry workers' association officials were not available for comment on how the two short-run ferries were staffed for their runs.

'It Started As Huge Joke' But Race Seriously Shaken

By RON COLLISTER

OTTAWA (Special) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau today emerges as a front-runner for the Liberal leadership, or the man who could deliver the job to the candidate of his choice. The 46-year-old justice minister threw his hat into the ring, the eleventh candidate to succeed Prime Minister Pearson.

Trade Minister Robert Winters is expected to be the twelfth. A source close to Winters said Friday that the announcement is now only a matter of strategy.

The Trudeau entry has shaken up the race. He is expected to cut deeply into the committed support of Paul Martin, Mitchell Sharp, John Turner and others.

The Trudeau reluctance to run disappeared rapidly Friday. He is now a candidate trying as hard as anyone in the field.

He announced his decision at a news conference and gave the newsmen the credit or the blame for his running.

I didn't start off, a long time ago, deciding that I wanted to be leader of the Liberal party," Trudeau said. "If I had to assess what happened in the past two months, I have a suspicion that you people had a lot to do with it," he told the newsmen.

"I think that in the subcon-

U.S. Blacklisted Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau acknowledged Friday he was once on a U.S. government blacklist prohibiting his entry to the country.

He gave details under questioning at a news conference at which he entered the Liberal leadership race.

Trudeau said he was removed from the blacklist after he asked the U.S. government to review his case. He gave this account.

Around 1956 or 1957 he was a delegate to a Commonwealth conference in Pakistan as a member of the Institute of International Affairs. At that time, he had heard he was on the blacklist and later went to the U.S. consulate in Montreal and had it confirmed.

He inquired how to "whiten" himself in the eyes of the U.S. government. He was told it was necessary to appeal the decision and did so. There was an examination of his case and his past was looked into. And the decision was reversed. It took a few weeks.

Trudeau said he suspected the blacklist arose from two things. One was his attendance at the 1952 economic conference in Moscow when Joseph Stalin was at the height of his power as the Soviet leader.

The minister said he was attacked at the time for being communist. The second factor was that he had subscribed to left-wing periodicals.

Giant Jobs Build Island's Future

'Nanaimo Won't Get Industry'

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—Submissions are being prepared, to persuade the provincial government to adopt a radical assessment-freeze on development land.

Boers

Home Ownership

He advocated the city set aside land known as development areas.

To encourage vast rebuilding in areas which have degraded over the years, and to offset land purchase prices within the city, the proposal is that assessment rates be frozen for eight years from the time a building permit is issued, providing the redevelopment costs are in excess of 50 per cent of the assessed value of the property.

He explained that this would enable the 4,000 family heads within the city who are making less than $4,000 a year, to buy their own homes.

It would also retain young married people within the city. Some of these could buy a house, if the cost were low enough, but cannot afford to operate a car to commute to areas where low-cost housing is now available.

A third group which would Credit Union officials, who proposed the plan to city council Thursday night, are proceeding with the facts that may get a good hearing for the proposal. Rod Glen, executive officer of the Credit Union, said the government should be approached next week.

Disclaiming prophecies that Nanaimo will become a whole-saling centre for the Island, he said, "Nanaimo is not destined to become an industrial centre. "Nanaimo has not been gaining industries, it's been losing them," and referred to Malkins and Bureks sawmill as two recent examples.

He said one drawback is the fact that Nanaimo cannot supply enough water to attract industry.

benefit are the retired home owners now in the city.

Mr. Glen said many pensioners have money set aside for work on their houses, but have deferred the work because they cannot afford to rejuvenate their homes and pay higher taxes as well.

The eight-year freeze before increased assessments would be the spark that could ignite a blaze of reconstruction, he predicted.

Building Inspector Ben Boers said, "Every time I do something to my house, up go the taxes, is what I always hear. Is this what you're trying to prevent?"

Mr. Glen answered "Yes." He said, "The property tax system subsidizes the slum landlord, penalizes rehabilitation efforts, discourages good quality in building, falls most heavily on the small homeowner, creates enormous hostility among voters, and is costly and complex to administer."

Separate Plans

Ald. Gertrude Hall said, "I can't see much of a conflict between the two," in reference to city plans for urban renewal.

She said the city's plans are aimed primarily at commercial site rejuvenation, while the Credit Union plan encompasses residential areas.

Mr. Glen underscored the fact that the redevelopment plan would be under complete control of council and planning commission.

He said the two bodies would be the ones to decide which areas should be encouraged by the eight-year plan, at which time the monies the credit union has earmarked for the scheme would be used.

Whole blocks might be razed for new construction, and in other cases, buildings would be given new sewer and electrical services.

He said internationally-recognized urban renewal expert Eugene Sternberg would be commissioned to plan the redevelopment areas.

Mr. Sternberg is a consultant for the U.S. government's urban renewal schemes.

Mr. Glen said there might be a possibility the scheme had never been fully explored before by senior governments, for residential sites.

When You Hear This Gun, Duck!

North Cowichan will not follow lead of Central Saanich in banning special duck gun, if George Whittaker has his way. George is both farmer and municipal councillor, who has ordered one of loud propane guns to stop annual duck damage. But Central Saanich has objected to special device. Bill Taylor, left, and son Joe operate the gun, which scares birds. (Agnes Flett)

PORT ALBERNI — "Thank God it didn't take the house too," said Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Semerad of Beaver Creek Road, as they surveyed the aftermath of a fire Thursday night.

It wiped out a double garage, machinery shed, and a nearby shed housing goats and bantams.

Cracked windows, yellowed plastic roofing on a back porch, and a melted plastic seedholder on the canary cage inside the house, showed how lucky the family had been, despite a loss of buildings, tools and machinery valued at more than $2,100.

Mrs. Semerad was aroused shortly before 9 p.m. by a noise she thought might be youngsters with air guns.

She looked out but saw nothing. A few minutes later, the barking of a neighbor's dog led her to wonder if youngsters were hiding behind the house.

This time she saw fire shooting out around the door of the shed, only 15 feet from the side of the house.

The couple estimated that at one time as many as 300 people had been attracted by the fire.

and seed dishes melted in the heat from the fire outside as he hung in the window, and who later spent two hours out in the frosty night under a blanket, was singing lustily Friday morning.

Like the rest of the family, he was apparently giving thanks that the house was still standing.

Boy, 3 Drowns

PORT ALBERNI — John Roberts, three, was drowned in the Soanias River Friday afternoon.

His mother, Mrs. Loretta Roberts, 1982 River Road, reported him missing soon after 3 p.m. RCMP and the Fire Department inhaled crowd stood by, however they were unable to revive him.

Friday morning, as they attacked the problem of clearing away the mess, their tiny chihuahua dog kept running back to Mrs. Semerad's arm for protection.

Pioneer Project Could Begin Soon

By KLAUS MUEENTER

NORTH COWICHAN—A start could be made on the Pioneer Park recreation area late this year or early next, North Cowichan Reeve Don Morton has indicated.

Reeve Morton, discussing the $5,000 A. B. Sanderson Pioneer Park report, said a start could be made "on a major project" at the end of this year.

He added however that implementation of the entire report could take 10 years and cost $1,000,000.

Both North Cowichan and Duncan recreation commissions and civic heads have given the report their full support.

They have urged that thorough preparation be made before a money bylaw is put to the voters.

The recreation commissions decided Thursday to combine the first three stages of the report, at a cost of more than $800,000.

Covered Pool First

The first three phases would give this area a covered swimming pool, a community centre complex, fields for junior and senior soccer, a fieldhouse, new tennis courts and the relocation of existing little league diamonds and stands.

Reeve Morton cautioned "We must remember that debentures are extremely hard to sell."

"The condition of the present market might mean that, even if people would vote for it, we might have no way of borrowing that much money."

"I would suggest we get on with it to the bylaw stage while there is so much enthusiasm," Duncan Mayor Jim Quaffie commented "It is a very comprehensive report."

"We should get started with plans before the costs increase. "We have to prepare a bylaw but I can't see it being put to the voters before autumn."

"I have a lot of faith in this report."

The mayor indicated city ratepayers will approve it.

"During campaigning last year I met many people who said they would go for recreation if a good plan is proposed."

The mayor said a community centre would also be a great boon for elderly citizens, who have been neglected in the past.

He added that other cultural groups have also had to put up with inadequate facilities. A community centre, swimming pool, playing fields and bowling green would serve practically all age groups in the two areas.

Diamonds Will Move

Reeve Morton favors the building of a swimming pool and of some of the playing fields by the two municipalities and the construction of a community centre under the regional district.

Other recommendations in the Sanderson report include:

● Phase 4, relocation of existing softball and baseball diamonds with stands and improvement of playing areas, $20,000.

● Phase 5, construction of additional parking areas for the Cowichan Exhibition and landscaping of the exhibition grounds, $25,000;

● Phase 6, construction of an ornamental lake and picnic area, $60,000;

● Phase 7, construction of a new baseball stadium, $50,000.

Discussing phase 8, the planners said, "There is no need for additional land at Pioneer Park for recreational purposes of the future. However, it would be advisable to obtain the remaining undeveloped land northwest of the park for development as a park and to provide an attractive entrance to the city."

The curling rink on James Street would not be a desirable addition to the park, said the planners.

The report recommends a 25-metre, six-lane indoor swimming pool, a diving tank and a training pool adjacent to the shallow part of the large pool.

In Her House There Are Many Mansions

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN — "Out of all the foster children I've looked after, Indian children are the most loving," said Duncan's new Citizen of the Year, Mrs. Josie Lowwood.

During the past 25 years she has opened her home and her heart to 100 foster children.

It was for this reason that the judges unanimously chose her for the award from nine candidates.

No Chinese

She has welcomed youngsters of various nationalities, including Danish, Indian and Hindu. "The rest were Canadian," she said. I have never had a Chinese child, although some were Indian-Chinese."

Two years ago, Mrs. Lowwood helped with the Indian kindergarten in the district, where she was an assistant to the teacher. "It was the most interesting work I have done," she said.

Following the announcement, Mrs. Lowwood, 350 McKinstry Street, said "If there is any credit to be given, it should go to the welfare people."

"They were always there when I had any problems, and they have stood behind me like rocks."

Mrs. Lowwood's career as a foster mother started when her own two sons were young. "There was almost five years difference between the two boys."

Lame Child

"John, the eldest, was very quiet, while Peter was an outgoing, laughing boy who was getting very spoilt."

Mrs. Lowwood thought the best way to rechannel her youngest son's exuberance was to take in a foster child who was aged between her two sons.

Her first foster child was a little lame boy who had been at the solarium (located at Mill Bay then).

The youngster was placed in Mrs. Lowwood's home because he was not ready to return to his own home. He had to return to the solarium periodically.

From then on there was nothing to hold Mrs. Lowwood back.

"I have had about 100 foster children in our home," she said. They have stayed for various periods of time ranging from a couple of days to 17 years.

One of the children whom

Mrs. Lowwood has kept in touch with is Joey.

"He is 22 now," she said. He stopped being a foster child when he was 18, but I am still mum to him."

Two of the girls who came to her home are now married and have children of their own. One young woman is living in the U.S. and Mrs. Lowwood is godmother to one of her children.

Another girl who Mrs. Lowwood has kept in touch with is living with her mother in Victoria, where she is attending UVic.

Another boy, Mickey, who is now on his own, also comes to visit occasionally.

She Was Ill

Mrs. Lowwood said, "The majority of the children returned to their families. I don't hear about the ones who were adopted after they leave."

The idea of helping children started many years ago when Peter was a baby. Mrs. Lowwood had to go into hospital, her own mother was ill, and she had to find someone to care for her children.

"I had a very hard time the same problem. Quite often finding someone reliable," she said. "I decided then that I would try to help other mothers with this way."

Mrs. Lowwood recalled the first unwed mothers who are waiting for their babies to be born.

She said, "My husband has

Josie

"We had just moved to Maple Bay," she said. One day when we were down on the beach, we saw Mr. Benton coming across the sand with a fat, squirming baby in one arm, and a bottle and a few nappies in the other."

All Cried

Mrs. Lowwood said Friday she has not taken care of babies for some time. "The last baby I had stayed here for a year and a half," she said. "You go through teething with them, and learning to walk and talk with them, and you get too attached to them."

"There was a crying good time the day the baby left. The baby cried, the new mother cried because she was so happy, and the welfare worker found me crying while I was doing my ironing."

She added, "It doesn't bother me so much when the bigger ones leave. I feel they can stand up for themselves, and I don't mind so much."

Mrs. Lowwood has also taken in unwed mothers who are waiting for their babies to be born.

She said, "My husband has shared in the responsibility of all the children. He is daddy to every one of them."

She added with a laugh, "The noise of the children still doesn't bother me — it just goes in one ear and out the other. When it bothers my husband he just unplugs his hearing aid."

Mrs. Lowwood has four foster children at her home now. Three of them are young. The eldest is 17.

Mrs. Lowwood was born in Rossland, B.C., but she was raised in Wales. She later lived in Australia, and returned to Canada during the First World War.

She has lived in Duncan since 1917.

The Lowwoods's two sons are both married now. Mr. and Mrs. Lowwood are the proud grandparents of three grandsons and a granddaughter.

With Colonist

John lives in Vancouver where he is manager of one of the Rayonier mills on the Fraser River.

Peter and his wife, Julia, live in Duncan. They have a son, Dean, and a daughter, Kim. Peter is working in a surveyor's office.

Mrs. Lowwood said, "John and Peter were both Daily Colonist carriers when they were young, and two or three of my foster sons were, too."

Terry, who is living with the Lowwoods, is a present Colonist carrier.

Mr. Lowwood also used to deliver bundles of the Colonist to carriers throughout the district.

"He had a truck route for two years," she said.

"He travelled as far away as Crofton and Youbou."

Third Award

Mrs. Lowwood will be the guest of honor at a Duncan Kinmen Club banquet next Tuesday. Kinmen have sponsored the Citizen of the Year contest for the past three years.

The judges were Rev. R. F. Stephenson, Sandy Medler, Kinmen president, and Jack Mumm, of the IWA.

The first recipient of the award was Gerry Wellburn, who played a big part in the formation of the Cowichan Valley forest museum.

Last year the award went to Claude Green, chairman of the Cowichan District Hospital board, who battled for several years to get the district's new hospital.

Inquiry in Doubt

Opposition Split

House Hears More Highway Charges

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

The NDP and Liberals in the legislature Friday both fired more big guns at Highways Minister Gagliardi but the opposition parties couldn't agree between themselves whether the whole matter should be put to a judicial inquiry. (See also Page 22.)

The house was thrown into an uproar as the first opposition speaker, Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay), called for a judicial inquiry into "this whole dirty business" and said it was the only way the air can be cleared from "this unhealthy stench of suspicion arising from innuendo." Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East), who spoke next, said he wasn't against holding a judicial inquiry but he felt one wasn't necessary because the public had already been made aware of many of the facts surrounding controversial land developments along major B.C. Interior highways.

Then Mr. Macdonald went on to make additional disclosures regarding the involvement of Mr. Gagliardi's two sons in land developments along the new Yellowhead route, Trans Canada highway, and highway 16 east.

Bonner

The Gagliardi sons, Bob, 27, and Bill, 24, were connected by Mr. Macdonald with companies holding land at Cache Creek, Blue River and McBride.

Mr. Macdonald said provincial assessment notices on two of the lots at Blue River were actually sent to Mr. Gagliardi's Kamloops home in the name of Northland Investments Ltd., a company which is also connected with Bill and Bob Gagliardi at a Vancouver address.

The NDP member also charged that companies involved in ownership of the property in question, as well as property at the Trans-Canada-Merritt highway junction near Kamloops, were in breach of the Companies Act because they did not file the names of their real owners with the companies office in Victoria.

Mr. Macdonald alleged that a sign posted at Blue River by Northland was "obviously" painted by the Kamloops highways department sign shop foreman, Frank Methot, the same man who "moonlighted" to paint a similar sign advertising property for sale near Kamloops.

Mr. Macdonald said the whole case raised a question of political morality: "Is it

Old Case

Suit Requires Testimony Of Minister

VANCOUVER (CP)—The ghost of a legislative inquiry into the provincial highways department came back to haunt embattled Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi Friday.

Mr. Gagliardi was served with a subpoena ordering him to appear in Vancouver county court next week as a witness in a trial arising from the same road construction incident that triggered an investigation of his department in 1963.

(It is believed members of the legislature enjoy immunity from subpoenas during the course of a session as well as 20 days before and 20 days following a session.)

The subpoena was issued by Dick Holzworth, a Helena, Mont., contractor, who was president of Union Contractors Ltd. when the case first arose five years ago.

Mr. Holzworth is suing Arthur Burton Lymburner, a former director of L and M Logging Co., for unspecified damages. Mr. Lymburner's company held a contract for work on the Southern Trans-Provincial Highway several years ago that was later taken over by Union Contractors in a cash-for-shares transaction.

GAGLIARDI CLEARED

Mr. Holzworth triggered the investigation of Mr. Gagliardi's department with allegations of graft. Mr. Gagliardi was subsequently exonerated.

In a speech to the legislature Thursday night, the member for Kamloops said he had learned that one man had been offered a $25,000 bribe to testify against him in a civil case in Vancouver, apparently the Holzworth action.

He declined to identify the man he says was offered a bribe, but said the matter has been referred to the attorney-general's department.

It was the latest round in a series of developments that started two weeks ago when Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East) shocked the legislature by inferring there had been some land deals involving Mr. Gagliardi's department and his two sons, Bill and Bob, in the Kamloops area.

SWORN STATEMENT

Meanwhile, at Kamloops, The Sentinel Friday published an affidavit sworn by a Blue River businessman, who once held rights to purchase a piece of property along the present route of the Yellowhead, which is now under construction.

James Lamont said in the affidavit he was first approached by Bob and Bill Gagliardi in the fall of 1964. He said they offered to buy his option on the land for $200 and had escalated their offer to $2,000 by February the following year.

Mr. Lamont said he was not at any time aware that the property would be on the Yellowhead route. He said he eventually lost his option and the land later went to Northland Investments Ltd.

Officers Join Strike Government Defied

FERRY SWITCH FAILS

Despite the government's emergency legislation Friday night to end the B.C. Ferries strike, the walkout still stands.

The ferry workers voiced "no thought of getting back on the job," and were joined in their action by 200 mates, engineers, masters and pilots aboard the ferries, who voted to strike at midnight.

The officers are members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

"This new legislation changes nothing as far as I can make out," said Norman Thorner, business agent for the 900-member marine branch of the B.C. Government Employees Association which represents the unlicensed deck and dock workers.

Royal Assent Given

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was called to the legislature shortly before 10 p.m. Friday to give royal assent to a bill bringing the ferry system into the highways department and the government immediately appealed to striking crews to return to work by Sunday morning.

The move, which was condemned by the NDP in the house as "strike breaking" and "iron-heel bureaucracy," is intended to strengthen the hand of the government in bargaining with 800 striking unlicensed ferry workers.

The men went out on strike at 5 a.m. Friday, halting all sailings on two major routes linking Vancouver Island with the mainland as well as several minor routes.

Air Armada Lone Ferry Pack 'Em In

Airlines and one lone ferry worked hard on the Island Friday, handling extra traffic caused by the B.C. Ferries strike. Ferry traffic from Swartz Bay and Nanaimo to the B.C. mainland was almost halted, except for the CPR ferry Princess Vancouver.

Banks in Nanaimo were crowded with customers to closing time Friday as people cashed cheques to handle the expense of overnight lodgings forced on them by the ferries shutdown.

"There's standing room only," said a near-exhausted CPR ferry official Friday after having turned away more than a hundred cars.

The car deck had been booked solidly for the 10 p.m. sailing by 3 o'clock that afternoon.

By late Friday night, the 10 p.m. Saturday sailing was completely booked.

The ferry makes three sailings from Nanaimo each day to downtown Vancouver.

Planes Keep Busy

A chartered Nanaimo airline which normally makes five flights a day to Vancouver stepped up its schedule to 17 flights to handle extra traffic.

Air Canada scheduled 11 extra Viscount flights each way between Victoria and Vancouver, during the day on Friday, and cleaned up the stand-by passengers Friday evening by adding two more extra flights, carrying more than 1,000 passengers each way during the day.

Today and Sunday, Air Canada will play it by ear, but have arranged to have a similar pattern available, with 11 extra flights during the day and two in the evening, making a total of 19 each way with Viscount aircraft.

Extra Ground Staff

Air Canada added extra reservations staff to keep up with the heavy flow of inquiries, and will keep the staff beefed up as long as the emergency exists.

The Mayne Island Queen, plying from Swartz Bay to the major Gulf Island ports, and the Salt Spring Island ferry, from Swartz Bay to Fulford Harbor, were running Friday, but a ferry official was not able to say whether they would continue to ply on schedule.

Ferry workers' association officials were not available for comment on how the two short-run ferries were staffed for their runs.

By RON COLLESTER

OTTAWA (Special) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau today emerges as a front-runner for the Liberal leadership or the man who could deliver the job to the candidate of his choice. The 46-year-old justice minister threw his hat into the ring, the eleventh candidate to succeed Prime Minister Pearson.

Trade Minister Robert Winters is expected to be the twelfth. A source close to Winters said Friday that the announcement is now only a matter of strategy.

The Trudeau entry has shaken up the race. He is expected to cut deeply into the committed support of Paul Martin, Mitchell Sharp, John Turner and others.

The Trudeau reluctance to run disappeared rapidly Friday. He is now a candidate trying as hard as anyone in the field.

He announced his decision at a news conference and gave the newsmen the credit or the blame for his running. I didn't start off, a long time ago, deciding that I wanted to be leader of the Liberal party," Trudeau said. "If I had to assess what happened in the past two months, I have a suspicion that you people had a lot to do with it," he told the newsmen. "I think that in the subcon-

U.S. Blacklisted Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau acknowledged Friday he was once on a U.S. government blacklist prohibiting his entry to the country.

He gave details under questioning at a news conference at which he entered the Liberal leadership race.

Trudeau said he was removed from the blacklist after he asked the U.S. government to review his case. He gave this account.

Around 1956 or 1957 he was a delegate to a Commonwealth conference in Pakistan as a member of the Institute of International Affairs. At that time, he had heard he was on the blacklist and later went to the U.S. consulate in Montreal and had it confirmed.

He inquired how to "whiten" himself in the eyes of the U.S. government. He was told it was necessary to appeal the decision and did so. There was an examination of his case and his past was looked into. And the decision was reversed. It took a few weeks.

Trudeau said he suspected the blacklist arose from two things. One was his attendance at the 1952 economic conference in Moscow when Joseph Stalin was at the height of his power as the Soviet leader.

The minister said he was attacked at the time for being communist. The second factor was that he had subscribed to left-wing periodicals.
